

WHIPPED ENOUGH TO CAUSE DEATH

NEW LAWS GO INTO EFFECT AT MIDNIGHT

Many Important Changes in Banking, Industry, Taxation Laws Noted

NEW APPOINTMENTS

Supreme Court Commissioner At $5,500 Per Year Is Provided For

More than 300 enactments of the 1923 legislature of North Dakota which lacked an emergency clause became effective on July 1, the most far-reaching of which affect banking and taxation in the state.

A marked change in the banking situation may come about through senate bill No. 152, which will permit banks in the state to consolidate. It was predicted at the time of enactment that within two years more than 50 banks in the state would avail themselves of the law, reducing the number of banks and increasing the strength of others.

Another measure provides that the directors of a bank may assess the capital stock not exceeding 100 percent for a period of three years, a measure designed to give banks an opportunity to strengthen themselves.

The entire method of administering the affairs of insolvent banks was rewritten by the legislature. Senate bill No. 267 provides that the supreme court of the state is given, and requested to exercise, original jurisdiction in insolvency proceedings to liquidate and wind up the affairs of all insolvent banks at the time of taking effect of the act.

It is provided that after July 1 the state examiner shall certify to the Attorney-General a list of all insolvent or closed banks and the Attorney-General shall institute proceedings to have the banks declared insolvent and affairs wound up. The supreme court is required, on the taking effect of the act, to appoint a Court Commissioner, at a salary of $5,500 per year—the same as supreme court justices—to whom it may refer all matters with respect to insolvent banks to hear evidence and make findings of fact. The supreme court may on petition name receivers to supersede any receiver heretofore appointed.

The Depositors' Guaranty Fund Commission act was rewritten to provide greater and more definite power in administering the fund and supervising banks. The commission is given authority to appoint a secretary who shall receive not more than $2,000 a year.

Much power over state banks is given the commission in the provision that "it shall be the specific duty of the Depositors' Guaranty Fund Commission to pass upon the qualifications of each and every bank for admission under the Depositors' Guaranty Fund and their actions shall be final, both as to immediate admission or what shall be further required of any bank in order to place it in a condition satisfactory to the commission so that it may be admitted later.

The commission may appoint two inspectors to inquire into condition of banks and it is made the duty of the commission to keep so informed. If the commission finds that a bank in shaky condition it may require that future deposits received be set aside in a trust fund as "special deposits" until the bank is strengthened, and if the bank does not meet requirements, it may institute proceedings in district court to have it declared insolvent. The commission is also permitted to determine the maximum rate of interest, if above 5 percent, that a bank may pay on deposits. It has been announced that the present maximum of 6 percent would not be disturbed.

Taxation Law

The most far-reaching of the taxation laws provides that real property in the future shall be assessed on a 75 percent basis, and all other property, not otherwise specified, on the same basis. Another law repeals the $500 exemption heretofore allowed on city homes, farm equipment, $300 on household goods and working tools, but all structures and improvements on agricultural lands, such as a building, are still exempted from taxation.

A new income tax law becomes effective, which greatly increases the income tax on individuals in the state, which is expected to provide a great portion of the state's general revenue. The tax begins with 1 percent on all net incomes above $2,000, the exemptions being $1,000 for unmarried persons, $2,000 for married persons, with additional exemptions for children, and increases to a tax of 5 percent on all net incomes above $500.

A new gasoline tax law, increasing the tax, also was enacted and the inheritance tax clarified.

Levies Limited

The tax limitation law has brought much comment throughout the state because of the severe limitation it puts upon counties, cities, villages and school districts.

SENATOR LADD IN BISMARCK FOR FEW HOURS

Confers With Business Men Relative to Flood Control Plans in State

Senator E. F. Ladd spent a few hours in Bismarck yesterday conferring with some of the business men in reference to federal matters affecting this section of the state. The Senator is especially interested in getting the people of this section aroused upon the matter of flood control of waters in the upper Missouri river basin.

Millions are now being expended in the south for levees, dams, and other means of flood control and Senator Ladd is of the opinion if enough demand is shown that the southern senators will join with the north in a scheme to impound the waters at their source.

He is in favor of trying out a small irrigation and power project on one of the small streams such as the Heart river. If this works out successfully his plan is to extend the project. But the chief aim is to conserve the waters in the spring and to utilize them for power and irrigation purposes.

While here he conferred with J. H. Worst upon a plan of reforestation. Senator Ladd stated that if ten acres plots could be planted to trees, he believes that the moisture would be held better in this section that the climate would milder and that there would not be so much menace from hail.

He says that in Germany whenever a farmer cuts down a tree on his farm he is compelled to plant another and that Mr. Worst stated that in Norway when one tree is cut down two are planted in its place.

Senator Ladd believes that federal aid can be secured to place in North Dakota especially in the slope section a number of ten acre forestry plots and that the farmers who cared for them would receive aid for this purpose.

Senator Ladd left for Fargo Friday evening and plans to leave early next week for Washington.

BISMARCK IS ON AIR ROUTE

Several Flyers Will Stop Here Night of July 4

It is expected that some of the many flyers en route to the Dempsey-Gibbons fight, which is to take place at Shelby, Montana July 4th, will stop here to take on supplies of fuel, oil and water. This city is on one of the main charted routes to the scene of the battle and it is known that the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, co-operating with the Aero Club of the East and Midwest, has arranged for a supply of Standard Aviation Gasoline and Superia Aero Oils here and at the other designated points.

In addition to a number of spectators who will make the trip by air, it is certain that at least two of the great pictorial news bureaus will rush flight pictures East by airplanes that will take flight immediately after the last blow is struck.

DR. J. H. WORST CLOSES LONG RECORD OF 36 YEARS IN PUBLIC SERVICE AS HE RETIRES FROM IMMIGRATION WORK

Dr. John H. Worst, who will retire as commissioner of immigration Monday, will complete an unusual record of period spent in the public service, 36 years in official capacity in the state of North Dakota.

Dr. Worst, a settler in Emmons county, entered public service as superintendent of schools in the young county of Emmons 40 years ago, leaving while carrying on his duties. He was superintendent of schools for six years, then was a state senator for 6 years, and 2 years lieutenant governor, and for 20 years was president of the Agricultural college, the first break in his long period coming when he retired from that position in 1916. In 1919 he was named commissioner of immigration and has been in that capacity for four years.

"During the four years I have administered this office," said Dr. Worst, "on the eve of his retirement, we have endeavored to thoroughly advertise the resources of the state and expound the opportunities it holds out for new settlers."

When Dr. Worst ends his term here Monday, he plans to go to a farm owned by his son and himself on the lower Yellowstone in Montana.

Many difficulties were encountered in the administration of his office. Dr. Worst said, enumerating the war period, crops and rapid deflation of the value of farm products, but believes the work will bring results.

"We have, through our deputies, held hundreds of meetings in adjoining states where moving pictures (of which we had more than 100), showing North Dakota activities and development were shown, where lectures were delivered and illustrated literature distributed.

"In all we have distributed more than 500,000 pieces of literature and written not less than 60,000 letters to prospective settlers. In addition we have advertised liberally in newspapers, agricultural journals and magazines with a combined reading circulation of 30,000,000.

"The state has thus been kept in the minds of a large number of people. And now with better times apparent and promise of more fruitful seasons the work of this department in the past should bear fruit for the future.

"However quite a number of new settlers have been reported from time to time and, through the application work is unreasonably limited, my successor, having the advantage of work already done, should be able to complete more than he had to initiate the immigration movement."

Dr. Worst expressed appreciation of the services of C. G. Boise, secretary, Miss Helen Holland and Miss Florence Garaski, and to Lorne Wolfe for work as deputy and publicity agent.

TO PROTECT SCHOOL LANDS

State Board Orders Prosecution of Offenders

A motion providing that persons removing buildings, trees, coal or any improvements from state school land be reported to the Attorney-General for prosecution was approved at a meeting of the state board of university and school lands here.

It also was decided that where a permit to build a highway across state school land is applied for that the severance damages of not less than $5 an acre to land actually damaged be charged.

The board also took up about $14,000 of farm loans with funds of the Agricultural College.

It was announced that on April 1, 1922, there was on file applications for school district bond purchases totaling $3,000,000 and that the amount through payment of funds to take up purchases and cancellations had been reduced to $1,500,000 to date.

TOURIST CAMP NOW RANKS AS ONE OF BEST

Bismarck's Camp Is Much Improved and Offers Conveniences to Visitors

Bismarck's renovated tourist camp now ranks among the most convenient to be found on the National Parks Highway. Located, as it is, on the trail 1-2 miles east of the city it offers the convenience of good location to the tourists.

Among the improvements is a building recently erected to add to the comfort of tourists. In one end of this building is the serving tables and a sink for the washing of dishes. In the main portion of the building is built a long eating table with every side benches. Just east of the building has been erected a four-plated Dutch oven built of brick. The supply of wood is provided. Other added improvements are six tables and benches so placed to serve individual tourists parties. These tables and benches are in the open on the north side of the camp.

The information booth has been supplied with necessary state maps of Minnesota, Montana, North and South Dakota. Maps are also supplied of the National Parks Highway and National Parks. Highway cards are furnished by the Association of Commerce. These cards are in great demand for the reason that they show the distances between cities from Chicago to Seattle. This information booth also contains telephone service.

A new feature of the camp will be in operation this evening. Electric lights have been strung throughout the length of the camp, the electricity coming from the penitentiary power plant. The lights are turned on at sundown and remain burning throughout the night.

City wagons call twice a week for the garbage and the boys scouts of the city will aid in keeping the camp in a sanitary condition. The camp is also provided with toilet facilities.

NEW ENGLAND MAN INJURED AT SCHOOL, DIES

New England, N. D., June 30.—S. L. Melby, 44, died here Thursday of injuries received Tuesday while working on the new school. He had the contract for the building at Reeder, N. D. He was struck on the head by a post bucket filled with cement and made unconscious. He fell 12 feet to the ground. Death resulted from a fractured skull and aspiration pneumonia.

Mr. Melby was a well known contractor. He has built schools at New England, and Reeder, Leith, and Amidon. Besides the contract for the new school at Reeder he was to build the new municipal light plant here this summer.

His widow and five children survive. A brother, Ervin, lives at Wildrose, N. D., and a sister, Mrs. Martin Peterson, resides at Hillsboro, N. D.

Successor To Forks Man Named

Washington, June 30.—Roger W. Cooley, of Grand Forks, N. D., assistant general counsel of the Veterans Bureau, has resigned effective August 1 to resume a law professorship at the University of North Dakota. He will be succeeded by Randall Shaw, of Maine.

Governor At Gladstone Today

Governor R. A. Nestos and Dr. V. K. Stiekney of Dickinson were to be principal speakers today at an Old Settlers picnic at Gladstone, Stark county.

RUST REPORTS CAUSE UPWARD WHEAT PRICES

Reported All the Way From Minneapolis to Moorhead on Chicago Board

LITTLE IN NO. DAKOTA

Head of Anti-Barberry Campaign Tells of Few Places Where It Is Discovered

Chicago, June 30.—Bullish reports about crop conditions in the Northwest led to decidedly higher prices for wheat today in the early dealings. Traces of black rust were said to be present all the way from Minneapolis to Moorhead, Minn. In addition to yesterday's discovery of the pest near Aberdeen in S. D. With many weather forecasts to increase the damage from black rust previous sellers made haste to buy and the market rapidly advanced. Opening prices which varied from unchanged figures to 5-8 cents higher with Sept. $1.02 5-8 to $1.02 3-4 and Dec. $1.05 1-4 were followed by a sharp general upturn.

Subsequently reports that black rust had been found in South Dakota and Saskatchewan prevented any important bullish reaction. The close was firm, 1 3-4 to 1 5-8 cents higher with September $1.03 1-2 to $1.03 5-8 and December $1.06 1-2 to $1.06 5-8.

IN ISOLATED PLACES

Fargo, June 30.—George C. May, in charge of the government's campaign to eradicate the barberry bush in North Dakota, stated today that reports of black stem rust in the Northwest had no general bearing on North Dakota, as only a few isolated cases of rust had been discovered in this state. Although many cases had been reported to him he said that on investigation nearly all of these were found to be without foundation. In Cass county, near Christine, one case of blackstem rust is being treated by government officials in charge of Dr. Butler of Washington. Another case of black stem rust was found near Moorhead, Minn. and that is also being treated by Mr. May (Edith's) forces. This morning indications of rust in wheat were found in experimental tracts at the Agricultural College tract at Fargo but these are believed not to be caused by the barberry bush, but by a disease known as weed rust.

NONE AT FORKS

Grand Forks, June 30.—Inquiries have brought forth no reports of rust in the northeastern section of North Dakota. Present cool weather and previous warmth and dryness have not been favorable to the development of rust, according to J. G. Diamond, state statistician for the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

HAIL STORMS SOUTH OF HERE

Considerable Damage Is Done Through Fairly Narrow Strips

Hail storms which cut through fairly narrow paths south of Bismarck yesterday afternoon did considerable damage. A heavy rain was reported at points 12 miles southeast of the city. Some of the hail stones, it was said, were as large as hickory nuts. There was some wind but no damage from wind was reported.

A hail storm was reported about two miles north of the Alex McDonald farm, 20 miles southeast of the city. The hail was hard and the rain in places almost a veritable cloudburst.

There appeared to be a terrific storm east of Bismarck. County Commissioner Swanson reported a nice rain around Driscoll but no hail or wind damage. The rain, he said, extended to a point about four miles west of Driscoll.

There also was a shower eight miles east of Bismarck extending for a considerable distance.

The shower downtown in Bismarck yesterday afternoon did not extend to the state capitol.

Elevator Company Declares Dividend

Van Hook, N. D., June 30.—At their annual meeting here stockholders of the Van Hook Farmers Elevator company, declared a 10 percent dividend on business transacted. A special dividend of 20 percent for the present year in addition to the 10 percent was also ordered paid, making 30 percent paid on all stock.

About 250,000 bushels of grain were handled by the elevator during the last season, with a profit of $8,000.

A meeting is to be held June 30 to decide whether the elevator shall be made a cooperative company.

PRISONER ON HUNGER STRIKE

Cleveland, O., June 30.—John L. Whitfield, fasting in the county jail charged with the murder of Putnam Dennis Griffin, refused drink as well as food this morning. At 9 o'clock he had gone 87 hours without eating and his guards reported the new information that Thursday night he declined to drink water. Since breakfast time he has refused the black coffee he had taken during his first two days in jail.

HARDING SAYS LABOR, CAPITAL MUST BE FAIR

Administration Not in Sympathy with Extremists on Either Side

DISCUSSES SITUATION

Says Those Who Imagined Him Anti-Labor Find Themselves Mistaken

Helena, Montana, June 30.—President Harding declared here last night that those who imagined his administration would sympathize with projects for "the deflation of labor and the overthrow of labor organizations" have come "to realize their error."

"Nothing has been farther from the purpose of the present administration," he said in the tenth prepared address of his Western trip, an address devoted to the discussion of labor, social justice and women in industry.

The President said what his administration had "earnestly sought" is to lessen the occasion for conflict between capital and labor and to bring to both a realization of the obligation they owe "to the great public interest."

Quite frankly, the Executive stated that he knew there were some "men and women" who hoped for "a great and decisive conflict" between organized employers and organized labor, and that these elements were not all on either side of the "imaginary dividing line" between capital and labor.

"On the capital side of the line," he said, "were those who hoped that the administration would lend itself to their program of breaking down organized labor and sending it back to the era of individual bargaining for the individual job. On the labor side of the line were those who hoped by exhibiting demands and an attitude of unreasoning insistence to force the nationalization of some of our most important industries and services. Between these two extreme groups we have tried to hold the scales even."

Saved from Extremists

"How well have we succeeded? At least, we have saved the nation from the extremists of both sides. I believe our policy, and its results, have reflected the sound judgment of the overwhelming majority of the American people. I believe this people is firmly and finally committed to the ideal of preserving the fullest rights of private initiative and private enterprise, together with the right of organization on both sides of the line between capital and labor, and always consistent with the right of the public to be served efficiently and at a reasonable cost.

"We have come to the point where, fortunately, through the most difficult period of reconstruction that we have ever known. We have been sheltered against the world storm of tendency to social revolution. The best test of policy is by results. By that test, we ask no more than a fair and equal condition of our program. We ask that its results be compared with the showing, in these after-war years, than can be presented by any other country on the face of the earth.

"For our vindication, we point to a great nation, its credit preserved, its industries crowded to the point of capacity production, its people employed, its wage scales high beyond all comparison with any other in the world, its banking system standing as the final bulwark of sound money and the gold standard, and its average level of comfort and prosperity unexampled among the races of men.

"If I could make the fortunate picture stand out by offering contrast, I would speak of Russia and the colossal failure of its mad experiment. The dissatisfied working forces of America, where there are such, and the parlor theorists who have yet to create a single thing useful to aspiring human kind, will find there less of freedom, much less of reward, and little of hope in much proclaimed emancipation.

"I am making my appeal in this matter to the broadest and best sentiments of law abiding Americans everywhere. We must recognize that there are some people on both sides of this question in whose minds it is absolutely paramount. Some would be willing to sacrifice every other consideration of policy in order to have their own way as to this one. This constitutes one of the most demoralizing factors in the situation.

"It was very generally believed that the adoption of the Committee (Continued on Page 2)

STATE SCORES IN TESTIMONY OF PHYSICIAN

Says Number of Blows Alleged Given Tabert Would Have Caused Death

TRIAL IS NEAR END

Defense Testimony to be Concluded First of Next Week

Lake City, Fla., June 30.—Expert opinion given by Dr. F. F. Brown, a local physician, that seventy-five blows administered to a man with a leather strap weighing seven and one-half pounds would produce death, closed the state's case in the trial of Thomas Walter Higginbotham, who is on trial for the murder of Martin Tabert, North Dakota youth.

Mrs. Ollie Rhodes, keeper of the Putnam Lumber company's hotel, at Shamrock, Fla., Mrs. Wm. M. Mills, wife of a contractor working for the Putnam Lumber company, and Bert Duffin, an employee of the lumber company, and two negroes, one claiming to be an employee of the same company, were among those who testified they attended the funeral of Tabert on February 2, 1922, two days following his death in the prison stockade of the lumber company where he was serving as a convict.

Neither of the negro witnesses testified that they had noticed any discoloration on Tabert's face which would show that he had been struck with a strap, as witnesses for the state had testified.

Eddie Waters and Nina Bell, two former guards for the lumber company, gave in detail how Tabert was whipped by Higginbotham. It was after Bell and Waters had completed their testimony that Dr. Brown was called to the stand. Stafford Caldwell, special prosecutor, asked the physician one question.

"Doctor, if a young man 22 years of age, weighing about 130 pounds and unable to do any hard work, and assuming that he was struck with a leather strap about three feet long, three inches wide, and weighing seven and one-half pounds, and assuming he was struck seventy-five times with this strap, and assuming that he was in a feeble condition the next day, and assuming he was forced to go to bed that night, was unconscious Sunday night, Monday, and on Tuesday night he died, what would have been responsible for his death?"

"The whipping," replied the physician.

Defense witnesses continued to be called today.

It was doubtful if the defense would be ready to close tonight.

DISPUTE TESTIMONY

Lake City, Fla., June 30.—Black Auntie, the strap used by Walter Higginbotham, former convict "whipping boss" in whipping Martin Tabert of North Dakota weighed only one pound and eleven ounces, declared B. W. Guffel, former carpenter for the Putnam Lumber Co. and a defense witness, during the trial of Higginbotham here today. The former "whipping boss" is charged with the murder of Tabert.

Guffel said the strap was weighed while the special legislative investigation committee which inquired into Tabert's death was in session. He declared Higginbotham and Walter Priesse, another lumber company employee, witnessed the weighing. The witness told the jury it was an all-leather instrument and contained no iron or steel.

Guffel testified he did not know where the strap came from before it was weighed. Priesse, according to the legislative committee, said the strap had been found in the woods. When exhibited to the committee the strap showed from on steel in the handle. It was at the camp of the Putnam Lumber Co. at which Tabert was given the whipping.

J. T. Hendry testified he would not believe J. M. Tyson, a state witness, on oath, and that his character was bad. Tyson yesterday swore that the strap used in the whipping weighed about seven pounds, the weighing being done on scales of the Putnam Company before the whipping of Tabert.

Samuel Livingston followed Hendry and said he also would not believe Tyson.

ISSUE MAP OF SELFIDGE

Selfridge, N. D., June 30.—Enterprising boosters of Selfridge have issued a complete road map of North Dakota, together with a brief statement of the advantages of the town.

They list for Selfridge: 134 cars of grain shipped in 1922; thousands of cattle and hogs marketed each year; plenty of good farm land left at reasonable prices; dairying just being developed; business opportunities unexcelled; crop failure at Selfridge unknown; good schools and churches—public hall.

Selfridge is located on the Milwaukee railroad.

Dr. John H. Worst, who will retire as commissioner of immigration Monday, will complete an unusual record of period spent in the public service, 36 years in official capacity in the state of North Dakota.

Dr. Worst, a settler in Emmons county, entered public service as superintendent of schools in the young county of Emmons 40 years ago farming while carrying on his duties. "The state has thus been kept in the minds of a large number of people. And now with better times apparent and promise of more fruitful seasons the work of this department in the past should bear fruit for the future.

"However quite a number of new settlers have been reported from time to time and, through the appropriation work is unreasonably limited, my successor, having the advantage of work already done, should be able to accomplish more than if he had to initiate the immigration movement."

Dr. Worst expressed appreciation of the services of C. G. Boise, secretary, Miss Helen Holland and Miss Florence Garske, and to Lorne Wilde for work as deputy and publicity agent.

It also was decided that where a permit to build a highway across a tract of school land is applied for that severance damages of not less than $5 an acre to land actually damaged be charged. The board also took up about $14,000 of farm loans with funds of the Agricultural College. It was announced that on April 1, 1922, there was on file applications for school district bond purchases totaling $3,000,000 and that the amount through payment of funds to take up purchases and cancellations had been reduced to $1,500,000 to date.

NEW LEIPZIG MEN VICTORS

Manilla, P. I., June 30.—Manilla in the grip of a typhoon which began last night was under water today.

TOURIST CAMP NOW RANKS AS ONE OF BEST

Bismarck's Camp Is Much Improved and Offers Conveniences to Visitors

Bismarck's renovated tourist camp now ranks among the most convenient to be found on the National Parks Highway. Located, as it is, on the trail 11-2 miles east of the city it offers the convenience of good location to the tourists.

Among the improvements is a building recently erected to add to the comfort of tourists. In one end of this building is the serving tables and a sink for the washing of dishes. In the main portion of the building is built a long eating table with necessary side benches. Just east of the building has been erected a four-plate Dutch oven built of brick. The supply of wood is provided. Other added improvements are six tables and benches so placed to serve individual tourists parties. These tables and benches are in the open on the north side of the camp.

The information booth has been supplied with necessary state maps of Minnesota, Montana, North and South Dakota. Maps are also supplied of the National Parks Highway and National Parks Highway cards are furnished by the Association of Commerce. These cards are in great demand for the reason that they show the distances between cities from Chicago to Seattle. This information booth also contains telephone service.

A new feature of the camp will be in operation this evening. Electric lights have been strung throughout the length of the camp, the electricity coming from the penitentiary power plant. The lights are turned on at sundown and remain burning throughout the night.

City wagons call twice a week for the garbage and the boy scouts of the city will aid in keeping the camp in a sanitary condition. The camp is also provided with toilet facilities.

New England, N. D., June 30.—S. L. Melby, 44, died here Thursday of injuries received Tuesday while working on the new school. He had the contract for the building at Reeder, N. D. He was struck on the head by a post bucket filled with cement and made unconscious. He fell 12 feet to the ground. Death resulted from a fractured skull and aspiration pneumonia.

Mr. Melby was a well known contractor. He has built schools at New England, and Reeder, Leith, and Amidon. Besides the contract for the new school at Reeder he was to build the new municipal light plant here this summer.

His widow and five children survive. A brother, Ervin, lives at Wildrose, N. D., and a sister, Mrs. Martin Peterson, resides at Hillsboro, N. D.

Governor At Gladstone Today

Governor R. A. Nestos and Dr. V. K. Stickney of Dickinson were to be principal speakers today at an Old Settlers picnic at Gladstone, Stark county.

Successor To Forks Man Named

Washington, June 30.—Roger W. Cooley of Grand Forks, N. D., assistant general counsel of the Veterans Bureau, has resigned effective August 1 to resume a law professorship at the University of North Dakota. He will be succeeded by Randall Shaw of Maine.

RUST REPORTS CAUSE UPWARD WHEAT PRICES

Reported All the Way From Minneapolis to Moorhead on Chicago Board

LITTLE IN NO. DAKOTA

Head of Anti-Barberry Campaign Tells of Few Places Where It Is Discovered

Chicago, June 30.—Bullish reports about crop conditions in the Northwest led to decidedly higher prices for wheat today in the early dealings. Traces of black rust were said to be present all the way from Minneapolis to Moorhead, Minn. In addition to yesterday's discovery of the pest near Aberdeen in S. D. With rainy weather tending to increase the damage from black rust previous sellers made haste to buy and the market rapidly advanced. Opening prices which varied from unchanged figures to 5-8 cents higher with Sept. $1.02 5-8 to $1.02 3-4 and Dec. $1.05 1-4 were followed by a sharp general upturn.

Subsequently reports that black stem rust had been found in South Dakota and Saskatchewan prevented any important bearish reaction. The close was firm, 1 3-4 to 1 5-8 cents higher with September $1.03 1-2 to $1.03 5-8 and December $1.06 1-2 to $1.06 5-8.

IN ISOLATED PLACES

Fargo, June 30.—George C. Mayough, in charge of the government's campaign to eradicate the barberry bush in North Dakota, stated today that reports of black stem rust in the Northwest had no general bearing on North Dakota, as only a few isolated cases of rust had been discovered in this state. Although many cases had been reported to him he said that on investigation nearly all of these were found to be without foundation. In Cass county, near Christine, one case of black stem rust is being treated by government officials in charge of Dr. Butler of Washington. Another case of black stem rust was found near Moorhead, Minn., and that is also being treated by Mr. MacFadyen's forces. This morning indications of rust in wheat were found in experimental tracts at the Agricultural College tract at Fargo but these are believed not to be caused by the barberry bush but by a disease known as weed rust.

NONE AT FORKS

Grand Forks, June 30.—Inquiries have brought forth no reports of rust in the northeastern section of North Dakota. Present cool weather and previous warmth and dryness have not been favorable to the development of rust, according to J. G. Diamond, state statistician for the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

HAIL STORMS SOUTH OF HERE

Considerable Damage Is Done Through Fairly Narrow Strips

Hail storms which cut through fairly narrow paths south of Bismarck yesterday afternoon did considerable damage.

Hail and a heavy rain were reported at some of the hail stormers. It was said, were as large as hickory nuts. There was some wind but no damage from wind was reported.

A hail storm was reported about two miles north of the Alex McDonald farm, 20 miles southeast of the city. The hail was hard and the rain in places almost a vertical cloudburst. These hail storms appeared to be a terrific storm east of Bismarck. County Commissioner Swanson reported a nice rain around Driscoll but no hail or wind damage. The rain, he said, extended to a point about four miles west of Driscoll.

There also was a shower eight miles east of Bismarck extending for a considerable distance. The shower downed in Bismarck yesterday afternoon did not extend to the state capital.

Elevator Company Declares Dividend

Van Hook, N. D., June 30.—At their annual meeting here stockholders of the Van Hook Farmers Elevator company, declared a 10 percent dividend on business transacted. A special dividend of 20 percent for the present year in addition to the 10 percent was also ordered paid, making 50 percent paid on all stock.

About 250,000 bushels of grain were handled by the elevator during the last season, with a profit of $6,000.

A meeting is to be held June 30 to decide whether the elevator shall be made a cooperative company.

PRISONER ON HUNGER STRIKE

Cleveland, O., June 30.—John L. Whitfield, fasting in the county jail charged with the murder of Patrolman Dennis Griffin, refused drink as well as food this morning. At 9 o'clock he had gone 87 hours without eating and his guards reported the new information that Thursday night he declined to drink water. Since breakfast time he has refused the black coffee he had taken during his first two days in jail.

HARDING SAYS LABOR, CAPITAL MUST BE FAIR

Administration Not in Sympathy with Extremists on Either Side

DISCUSSES SITUATION

Says Those Who Imagined Him Anti-Labor Find Themselves Mistaken

Helena, Montana, June 30.—President Harding declared here last night that those who imagined his administration would sympathize with projects for "the deflation of labor and the overthrow of labor organizations" have come "to realize their error."

"Nothing has been farther from the purpose of the present administration" he said in the tenth prepared address of his Western trip, an address devoted to the discussion of labor, social justice and women in industry.

The President said what his administration had hoped for "a great and decisive conflict" between organized employers and organized labor, and that these elements were not all on either side of the "imaginary dividing line" between capital and labor.

"On the capital side of the line," he said, "were those who hoped that the administration would lend itself to their program of breaking down organized labor and sending it back to the era of individual bargaining for the individual job. On the labor side of the line were those who hoped, by exorbitant demands and an attitude of uncompromising insistence to force the nationalization of some of our most important industries and services. Between these two extreme groups we have tried to hold the scales even."

He said that he believed the nation was saved from the extremes of both sides. He believed our policy, and its results, have reflected the judgment of the overwhelming majority of the American people. I believe this people is firmly and finally committed to the ideal of preserving the fullest rights of private initiative and private enterprise, together with the fullest rights of the individual, on both sides of the line between capital and labor, and always consistent with the right of the public to be served efficiently and at a reasonable cost.

"We have come thus far, and thus far, through the most difficult period of our history, and we have ever known. We have been sheltered against the world storm of tendency to social revolution. The best test of policy is by results. By that test, we ask no more than a fair and reasoned verdict on our progress. We ask that its results be compared with the predictions of those who, after the war, than can be presented by any other country on the face of the earth.

"For our vindication, we point to a great nation, its credit preserved, its industries crowded to the point of capacity, and the people employed, its wage scales high beyond all comparison with any other in the world, its banking system standing as the final bulwark of sound money and the gold standard, and its average level of comfort and prosperity unequaled among the races of men.

"If I could make the fortunate picture stand out by offering contrast, I would speak of Russia and the colossal failure of its mad experiment. The dissatisfied working forces of America, where there are such and such a picture, have yet to create a single thing useful to aspiring human kind; will find there less of freedom, much less of reward, and little of hope in much proclaimed emancipation.

"In making my appeal in this matter to the broadest and best sentiments of law abiding Americans everywhere. We must recognize that there are some people on both sides of this question in whose minds it is absolutely paramount. Some would be willing to sacrifice every other consideration of policy in order to have their own way as to this one. This constitutes one of the most demoralizing factors in the situation.

"It was very generally believed that the adoption of the Constitution (Continued on Page 6)

STATE SCORES IN TESTIMONY OF PHYSICIAN

Says Number of Blows Alleged Given Tabert Would Have Caused Death

TRIAL IS NEAR END

Defense Testimony to be Concluded First of Next Week

Lake City, Fla., June 30.—Expert opinion given by Dr. F. F. Brown, a local physician, that seventy-five blows administered to a man with a leather strap weighing seven and one-half pounds would produce death, closed the state's case in the trial of Thomas Walter Higginbotham, who is on trial for the murder of Martin Tabert, North Dakota youth.

Mrs. Ollie Rhodes, keeper of the Putnam Lumber company's hotel, at Shattuck, Fla.; Mrs. Wm. M. Mills, wife of a contractor working for the Putnam Lumber company, and Bert Duffell, an employee of the lumber company, and two negroes, one claiming to be an employee of the same company, were among those who testified they attended the funeral of Tabert on February 2, 1922, two days following his death in the prison stocks of the lumber company where he was serving as a convict.

Neither of the negro witnesses testified that they had noticed any discoloration on Tabert's face which would show that he had been struck with a strap, as witnesses for the state had testified.

Eddie Waters and Nina Bell, two former guards for the lumber company, gave in detail how Tabert was whipped by Higginbotham. It was after Bell and Waters had completed their testimony that Dr. Brown was called to the stand. Stafford Caldwell, special prosecutor, asked the physician one question.

"Doctor, if a young man 22 years of age, weighing about 130 pounds and unable to do any hard work, and assuming that he was struck with a leather strap about three feet long, three inches wide, and weighing seven and one-half pounds, and assuming he was struck seventy-five times with this strap, and assuming that he was in a feeble condition next day, and assuming he was forced to go to bed that night, was unconscious Sunday night, Monday, and on Tuesday night he died, what would have been responsible for his death?"

"The whipping," replied the physician.

Defense witnesses continued to be called today. It was doubtful if the defense would be ready to close tonight.

DISPUTE TESTIMONY

Lake City, Fla., June 30.—Black Auntie, the strap used by Walter Higginbotham, former convict "whipping boss" in whipping Martin Tabert of North Dakota, weighed only one pound and eleven ounces, declared B. W. Guffie, former carpenter for the Putnam Lumber Co. and a defense witness, during the trial of Higginbotham today. The former "whipping boss" is charged with the murder of Tabert.

Guffie said the strap was weighed while the special legislative investigation committee which inquired into Tabert's death was in session. He declared Higginbotham and Walter Priese, another lumber company employee, witnessed the weighing. The witness told the jury it was an all-leather instrument and contained no iron or steel.

Guffie testified he did not know where the strap came from before it was weighed. Priese, according to the legislative committee, said the strap had been found in the woods. When exhibited to the committee the strap showed iron or steel rust in the handle. It was at the camp of the Putnam Lumber Co. at which Tabert was given the whipping.

J. T. Hendry testified he would not believe J. M. Tyson, a state witness, on oath, and that his character was bad. Tyson yesterday testified that the strap used in the whipping weighed over seven pounds, the weighing being done on scales of the Putnam Company before the whipping of Tabert.

Samuel Livingston followed Hendry and said he also would not believe Tyson.

ISSUE MAP OF SELFTRIDGE

Selfridge, N. D., June 30.—Enterprising boosters of Selfridge have issued a complete road map of North Dakota, together with a brief statement of the advantages of the town.

They list for Selfridge: 184 cars of grain shipped in 1922; thousands of cattle and hogs marketed each year; plenty of good farm land left at reasonable prices; dairying just being developed; business opportunities unexcelled; crop failure at Selfridge unknown; good schools and churches—public hall.

Selfridge is located on the Milwaukee railroad.

ADVERTISING PUTS PEP IN SALES HE FINDS

H. B. Stout Gives Address to Goodyear Dealers in This Section of State

Advertising as a merchandising factor was emphasized vigorously and visualized through an illustrated "pep" talk by H. B. Stout, manager of the merchandising division of the Goodyear Tire sales department at the annual dealers "get-together" meeting held last evening at the McKenzies hotel.

Every retail dealer in fact anyone in Bismarck who has something to sell could have learned with profit from the present address upon the power of advertising and the correct method of merchandising. It was unfortunate that a message bristling with ideas and suggestions that have received the acid test in the Goodyear experimental store at Akron was necessarily confined to the sales force of that company in this territory.

The burden of Mr. Stout's message was consistent, insistent and continuous advertising pays. He declared that 94 percent of the advertisers in one large Chicago daily who only placed copy spasmodically were failures in the end. It was the steady pulling of good copy well designed to make the article for sale that did the job.

How comprehensive is the Goodyear tire advertising drive in national magazines, special trade papers and newspapers was most graphically portrayed by pictures and statistics.

"Goodyear," he said, "does not depend upon one two or three time copy. We seldom start a campaign that does not run for at least 52 insertions in a paper and more often it is two or three times a week copy. That is what tells."

"If your goods do not move every forty days," you are not making the best out of your product. Window displays if properly arranged will pay your overhead in added sales every thirty days."

But advertising won't do the work alone, he contended. There must be service, courtesy and system—the handmaids of advertising, he declared. Too much time is given up to groaning over mail order competition he said.

"Why gentlemen," declared Mr. Stout, "if you are up on your toes and attend as much to your trade as the mail order house they would not have a show beside you. I have worked for mail order houses and know their system. They drop into a territory and make a survey. Where they find merchants not giving adequate service, failing to push sales by the various media of advertising, then they start a bombardment of literature. It usually comprises sending a man a series of twenty-four pieces of mail. If they get even so much reaction as a postcard, they continue that name for another series."

"Recently I was attending a trade meeting of business men and farmers the object of which was to better trade relations. One speaker complained about mail order competition. A farmer got up and admitted that he patronized mail order houses. 'What have you gentlemen done,' he inquired 'to reach out after my trade. In this audience there is only one merchant that has sent me a personal message asking for my business. He makes it a practice to call me on the phone and send me several letters a year besides reaching me by his advertisement and he gets my tire business. If you business men applied yourself as vigorously as the mail order man you would get the business too.'

"The proprietor is the best salesman in any organization, continued Mr. Stout. He should make at least three calls a year upon his customers in the city. Carrying the prestige of the house there is a potent influence in this bid for business that no salesman can have. The visit is an implied compliment that the business is appreciated."

C. A. Mosher, district manager, was the host at the dinner given the dealer. He was assisted by the resident salesman, F. D. Romanowsky.

An interesting exhibit was shown and educational talks were given during the day.

The following were guests of the Goodyear organization:

Bad Luck and the Devil Pursued Him

"I don't think any one has had more bad luck and sickness than I have. In 1905 I had two ribs, an arm and collar bone broken in a railroad accident. Then I had pneumonia. After recovering, I crossed a pasture when a bull chased me, tossed me over the fence and broke my right leg. In 1910 I had typhoid fever; since then severe stomach and liver trouble, which no medicine or doctor touched until two years ago I got a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which proved the first ray of light in thirteen years." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. CHALLENGES MIX

"Action" seems to be Tom Mix' middle name! Last night at the Capitol Theatre an enthusiastic audience saw the popular Fox star in his latest starring vehicle, "Catch My Smoke," that was simply crammed with action from start to finish. It is doubtful whether Tom Mix was ever called upon to display any more daring feats than those contained in "Catch My Smoke."

In this photoplay, Tom Mix as "Bob Stratton" is the object of a conspiracy to cheat him out of his ranch to which he has just returned after two years of service in France. Not only in his horsemanship superb but the many scenes centered about speeding freight trains kept

DIRECTORS OF SCHOOLS MEET

Elect Officers For Coming Year at Gathering of County Officials

School directors and clerks from all parts of Burleigh county attended the annual meeting which was held here Thursday in the American Legion hall. A hundred and sixteen were present at the meeting which was called to order by Miss Madeline Roney, county superintendent, who presided in the absence of the president or vice president.

The session was opened with community singing led by Miss Elsie Bauer of Fargo. P. P. Bliss of McKenzie discussed "What the School Board Should Expect of a Teacher" and Mrs. Ellis McCay, principal of the Canfield Consolidated school presented the subject, "What the Teacher Should Expect of the School Board," during the morning session.

A group of grade school children from Moffit under the direction of Mrs. Jean Darnody gave a health demonstration which was followed by a talk on health by Mrs. E. P. Quinn. County Auditor S. J. Johnson explained to the school officials the new "certificates of indebtedness," in regard to improvements in school buildings and expansion.

At the close of the afternoon a discussion of questions sent to the question box department took place, and Miss Bauer sang a group of three beautiful songs.

NEW LAWS GO INTO EFFECT AT MIDNIGHT

The limitations of levies fixed are: city and villages, 10 mills on the dollar of its next taxable assessed valuation; townships, 5 mills; school districts, common, independent or special, 14 mills; school districts giving two years high school work, 16 mills; giving four years high school work, 18 mills; maintaining consolidated schools, 16 mills; park districts, 2 mills; counties, for road and bridge purposes, 2 1/2 mills. It is provided that all levies may be increased by vote of the residents of the districts. The limitations may be exceeded by 40 percent on majority vote and 50 percent on two-thirds vote.

Legislation with respect to state industries, which becomes effective July 1, includes the winding up of the affairs of the Home Building Association, directing the sale of the Drake flour mill, and the provision for appointment of a board of managers to supervise operations of the state-owned mill and elevator at Grand Forks.

A board of managers consisting of five members shall be appointed by Governor Nestos within 30 days after the taking effect of the act, which shall consist of at least one person who has been experienced in farming, at least two experienced in the milling and grain handling business, which may appoint a secretary and auditor and act as a board of directors for the state mill. While it is made the duty of the board, which shall meet at intervals, to direct the operations of the Grand Forks mill and elevator it is made the board's duty to take steps to sell the Drake mill and elevator by calling for bids on 90 days notice.

Wind Up Home Builders
In senate bill No. 277 all the power of the Home Building Association is transferred to the Industrial Commission. It is made the duty of the commission to wind up the affairs of the Home Building Association. With regard to disputes as to the price of homes built by the association, none of which have been fully paid and but one contract signed covering over 50 houses, it is provided that the matter of the value of the house may be submitted to arbitration. The home builder would name one applicant, the industrial commission the second and the supreme court the third.

Another act provides for a tax to meet the deficit in Home Building Association, of one twentieth of one mill annually for each period as is needed to meet the deficit.

Among the milling laws passed was that authorizing the issuance of bonds on wheat purchased for the Grand Forks mill and elevator, designed to provide capital stock. This, however, was made an emergency measure.

Several bills affecting the Bank of North Dakota farm loan department were enacted, but do not greatly change the operations. The duty of collecting interest and amortization principal payments on the farm loans made is transferred from the state treasurer to the Bank of North Dakota. The limit of rural credits bonds was increased. (To Be Continued)

NEW BIDS TO BE RECEIVED

New bids for state bond issues will be received by the state Industrial Commission on Monday, a meeting of the commission scheduled for yesterday afternoon to receive new bids being postponed until that time. It is expected the Industrial Commission will in the meantime rearrange the state bond issues to be offered.

PEOPLE'S FORUM

Editor Bismarck Tribune, Sir:
Pertaining to an article appearing in the Mandan Pioneer of date 6-26, headed "Detail of Troops Sent to Guard Beulah Mine" I feel, personally, like entering a protest.

Either some space writer, adept at making a mountain out of a mole hill, or some interested party with ulterior motive, has cast bespattering upon our fair village.

The flaring headlines "I. W. W. blamed for the near riot of Sunday eve" is misleading. So far as I can ascertain there is not and was not at that time, an I. W. W. in town, unless perchance it was one of the non-union strike breakers imported by the Operators—these men I do not know the history, reputation or character of. A careful canvass shows that all but two of the members of the Miners Union in town on Sunday evening were married men; men of respectability; of integrity and industry; men who, in the majority, hold title to homes and are permanent citizens here.

The two unmarried men are also considered responsible men. Some I. W. W.s may have been here in the past, it would not be strange if some of the transients, drifters, coming and going had been I. W. W.s, or worse.

As to being "armed" I find absolutely no substantiation for this report.

For one I object both to these fellow citizens being traduced and to the reputation of the community for peace and lawfulness slandered by these reports and by calling out the Infantry on so slight a provocation. The peace officers of this county and of this village are willing and competent to suppress any disturbance so far showing or likely to appear, the only probable result of sending the Militia or other troops here would be to stir up some real trouble, this might result.

Even had troops been needed it is to laugh to suppose that anyone thought that four men would stop any real trouble of the magnitude that their strikes usually assume.

We can imagine the eastern papers coming out with burning columns of dope about the mighty clashes between the bloodthirsty miners and the troops way out in the wilds of North Dakota, vividly portraying the gore flowing down our streets and the wild Indians casually scalping a few drunken cowboys in the outskirts of the fray.

The President of the local Union on being interviewed said in effect "This I. W. W. act, inasmuch as it is the so-called Captains of Industry whenever any body of men begin to protest. We had no thought of 'storming the bunk house' in the sense the Pioneer implies when we went peacefully down there en-masse to have a heart to heart talk with the men who have been imported to take our places, we believe they have come here under misinformation or other misconception of the facts, do not realize the actual conditions nor what led up to the present circumstances, for this reason we wished to converse with them. They seemed afraid to appear on the streets, or were ordered not to by the Operators possibly, so not being able to see them elsewhere we went—more in a spirit of sadness than in resentment—to the bunk house to plead and argue with them, just a gentlemanly, pleasant presentation of our stand. Perhaps we did commit a trespass by going up on the Company's land, but it seems that a Company who has disregarded the laws of the State in several ways and continually could overlook one technical violation by others, we cannot see why the high toned violator of the law is any the less an Anarchist, doing it to save himself hundreds of dollars, than is the poor wretch who does it to gain a loaf of bread."

We have posted signs notifying all comers of the strike, these warnings, which tend to turn back all conscientious working men, are about our only weapon of self defence and insofar as they are legal ones we intend to use them.

After flatly refusing to concede to our just demand that a dependable check-weighman in whom we could trust be allowed to check the weights—at our expense—the Company to have one also, and to abide by the eight hour law as enacted in this State and practically forcing us to organize a local union now comes the Operator with a proposition that he will make concession as originally demanded provided we will violate our union obligations, what sort of men do they think we are? Many of our members who were against coming out in the first place are now determined to stick and to bear up under the suffering which this necessitates.

We care not to enter into the mooted questions pertaining to the merits and demerits, the benefits and disadvantages of unionism, the Miners demand and the Operators stand. The opinions and sympathies of our local citizenry differ, but when such prominent men as Supreme Court Justice Brandeis say "The right of labor to organize is recognized by law and should be fully recognized by employers. Most people admit the immense service which the labor unions have rendered to the community during the last twenty years in raising wages, shortening the hours of labor, bettering of conditions under which labor is performed, and protecting women and children from excessive or ill-timed work; but the services which the labor unions can render in the future are even greater than they have rendered in the past. The employer needs the unions to stay him from the fall of vanity; the employees need them for their protection; the community needs them to raise the level of the citizen."

And when such other prominent people such as Walter Clark, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina; such authorities as The Chamber of Commerce of the U. S.; The Industrial Committee of the Merchants Association of New York; Everett Macy, President of the National Civic Federation; Thomas Evans, Secretary of the Central Coal Co.; Richard T. Ely, noted Economist, (in his "Political Economy" page 238); Justice McCarthy, the Historian; Henry White; John R. Commons; J. C. Brooks; J. Allen White; and others laud the unions it seems we should think twice before condemning them. There may be some features, some local conditions, some members which may not sanction, we find this in all institutions. Before judging let us at least look into the matter of personal interest in the contentions, realizing that Miners want, and deserve, large wages, that they may have more of life's conveniences and be enabled to spend more time out in the pure air and sunshine; that the operators naturally want lower wages so that they may get more interest on their investments and keep away from bankruptcy. This is all beside the point, however, our protest is against this false I. W. W. cry.

AT THE MOVIES
CAPITOL
Louis Mercanton, who produced "Gypsy Passion," which will be shown at the Capitol theater on Monday is not one of those producers who have achieved a meteoric flight to fame; he has had years of experience as a film producer, and was responsible for first introducing to the screen Sarah Bernhardt, Mme. Rejane, Phyllis Neilson Terry, Gaby Deslys, Jean Richepin, Iver Novello, and a host of other popular favorites.

He has nothing "personal" to say about himself; little can be gleaned from him of his African war experiences, or of his theatrical career which is closely associated with Bernhardt; but there is one person of whom he is inordinately proud and of whom he feels he can never say enough, and that is his charming wife, Madame Mercanton, who acts as his business manager, and helps him in every possible way with all his film activities.

"Gypsy Passion" is based on "Mirak," the child of the bear, a famous French novel and opera written by Jean Richepin, and the author himself plays an important role in the production.

Madame Rejane, one of the most famous actresses of the day, is seen in the chief role. Desdemona Mazza and Iver Novello, the composer, are seen in the leading roles.

THE ELTINGE.
"Alice Adams," as it will be shown at the Eltinge theater, Monday and Tuesday is weighted down with distinctions. Florence Vidor, its star, has just been selected one of the six most beautiful women on the screen by Neysa McMein, famous magazine cover artist and portrait painter, as well as an authority on feminine pulchritude. Thus a new distinction has been given an already distinctive star.

As a novel by Booth Tarkington, "Alice Adams" won the Pulitzer prize

Rickenbacker Six

A CAR WORTH ITS NAME

4-wheel BRAKES

Again—Rickenbacker Engineering Leads, and Shows the Way

First assumed that leadership, by creating a motor free from any period of vibration—the most destructive force in an automobile.

The Rickenbacker "Tandem Flywheel" accomplished this.

Then the "Air Cleaner"—which doubles the life and renders your motor free from excessive carbon deposits.

And now—we announce the greatest improvement made in an automobile since the advent of the self-starter—13 years ago.

Here is a feature that is super-efficient; for not only do the four wheel brakes increase your tire mileage and eliminate all tendency to skid, but they offer the only practical solution of the twin problems of congested traffic and public safety.

With the same effort, you stop in about half the distance—with half the strain on tires, brake linings and other parts that you do in the same car equipped with 2-wheel brakes.

Or, with much less effort, your car stops in the same distance with still less strain on tires and axles.

Verily: "A demonstration is a revelation!"

For, if we told you here all the advantages of this great engineering achievement your credulity would be unequal to the test.

One cannot believe, until he himself has experienced the sensation, of riding in—and driving—a Rickenbacker with 4-wheel brakes.

So convinced are we of the superiority of four over two, we predict that one year from today 4-wheel brakes will be universal.

Remember this when rival salesmen try to argue against 4-wheel brakes—for of course they must, not having them, yet.

The superiority is so marked and so manifest, there is just no ground left for argument.

As we have stated, this is, and will be, regarded as the greatest single improvement in an automobile since the advent of that other epoch-making feature—the self-starter.

Here's a self-stopper—if you will!

Amazing in performance.

Does not affect steering unless it be to give you better control of the car when turning.

Actually stops car on wet asphalt quicker than 2-wheel brakes do on dry, with no skidding.

There's a feeling of security when driving on a wet or slippery surface that is indescribable and most reassuring.

Equalized as no other braking system has ever been equalized—to compensate, not only for difference in traction of each wheel, but for difference in wear of shoes and drums.

Drums are finely machined to ensure absolute uniformity and smoothness of operation. Another example of Rickenbacker thoroughness and care.

Think of this greatly increased factor of safety—100 per cent more than you have been accustomed to.

Here is a mighty long step towards the solution of the traffic problem.

You can stop in "a car length" at any legal speed—or glide to a velvety pause, in half the distance you are used to.

No, NOT hydraulic—pneumatic—or electric.

Mechanical—positive—simple—sure—a system any child can understand.

4-wheel brakes wear longer because the coefficient of friction per square inch of braking surface is less than half of what it is in two.

Tires wear longer for the same reason. Brake linings, too.

Silent, and uniformly efficient at all times and under all conditions—for all four brakes are of the internal, expanding type—dust-proof, clean, slightly.

All four brakes alike—interchangeable! That's another wonderful advantage.

Of course you recall that the Rickenbacker was the first high-class car that had steel disc wheels as standard. That bit of courage and enterprise started the wood wheel on the road to obsolescence.

And now—this latest Rickenbacker invention will relegate to the limbo of the forgotten, the old style of brake.

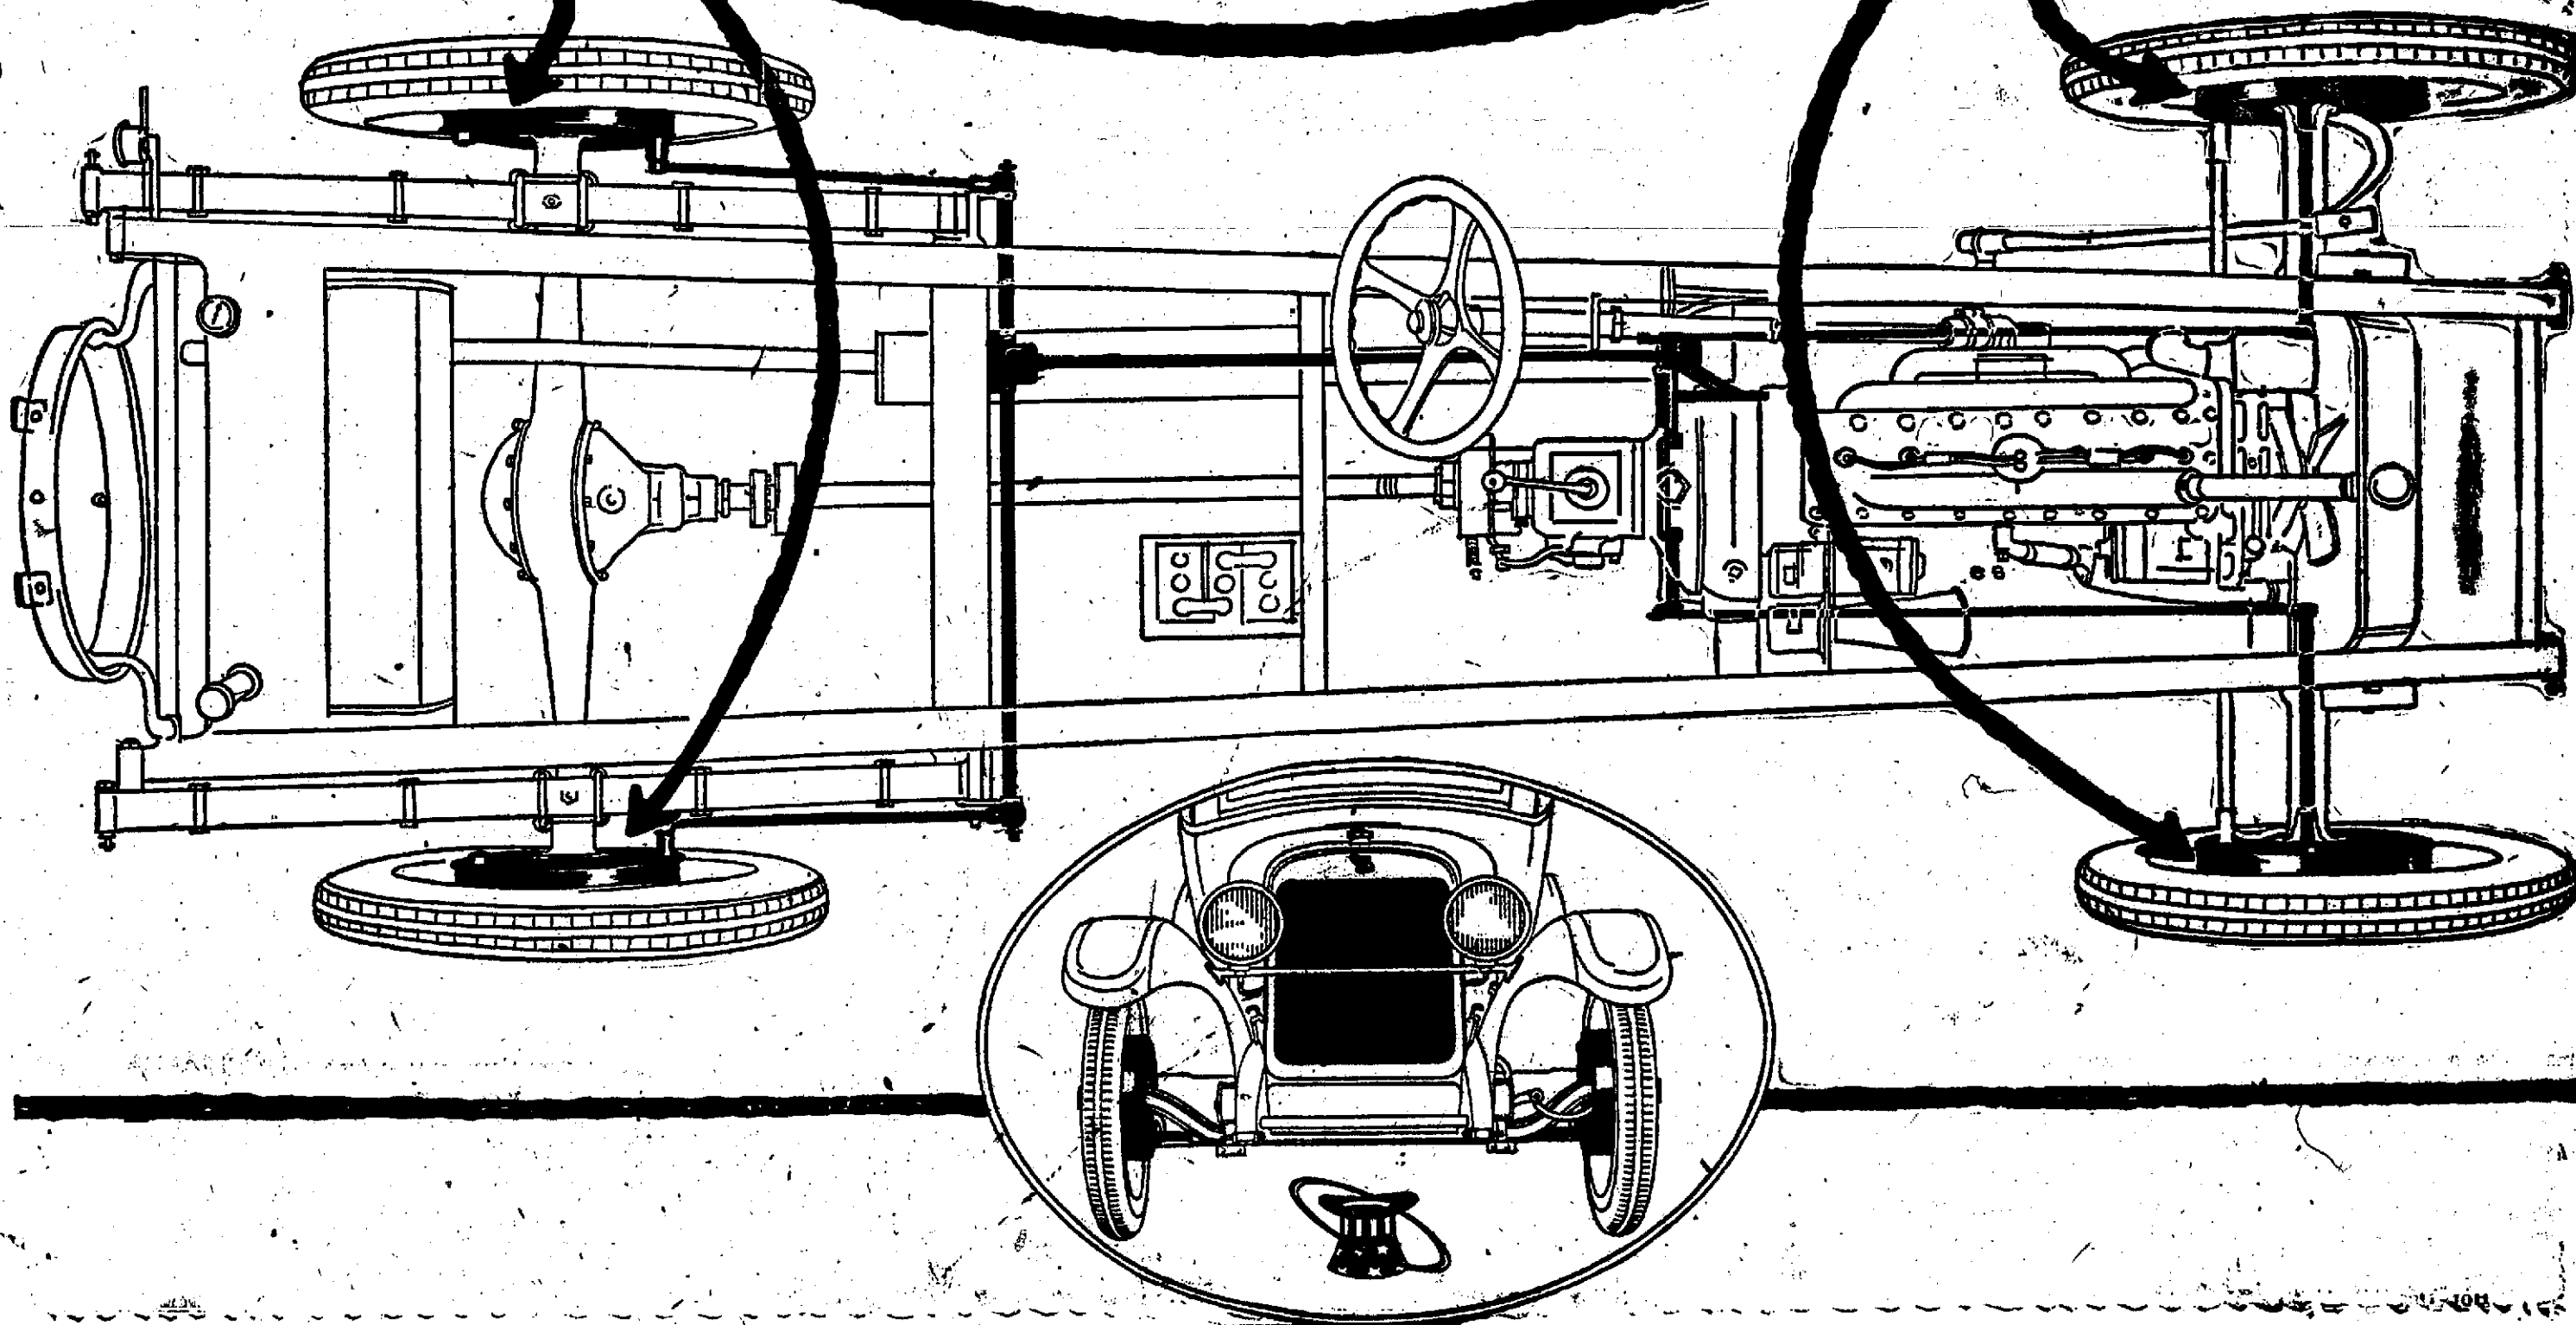

Six equalizers—one in each wheel and one between each pair of brakes to front and rear.

From now on, in the Rickenbacker Six, you will enjoy motoring as you never did before.

Rickenbacker Six

A CAR WORTH ITS NAME

4-wheel BRAKES

Again—Rickenbacker Engineering Leads, and Shows the Way

First assumed that leadership, by creating a motor free from any period of vibration—the most destructive force in an automobile.

The Rickenbacker "Tandem Flywheel" accomplished this.

Then the "Air Cleaner"—which doubles the life and renders your motor free from excessive carbon deposits.

And now—we announce the greatest improvement made in an automobile since the advent of the self-starter—13 years ago.

Here is a feature that is super-efficient; for not only do the four wheel brakes increase your tire mileage and eliminate all tendency to skid, but they offer the only practical solution of the twin problems of congested traffic and public safety.

With the same effort, you stop in about half the distance—with half the strain on tires, brake linings and other parts that you do in the same car equipped with 2-wheel brakes.

Or, with much less effort, your car stops in the same distance with still less strain on tires and axles.

Verily: "A demonstration is a revelation!"

For, if we told you here all the advantages of this great engineering achievement your credulity would be unequal to the test.

One cannot believe, until he himself has experienced the sensation, of riding in—and driving—a Rickenbacker with 4-wheel brakes.

So convinced are we of the superiority of four over two, we predict that one year from today 4-wheel brakes will be universal.

Remember this when rival salesmen try to argue against 4-wheel brakes—for of course they must, not having them, yet.

The superiority is so marked and so manifest, there is just no ground left for argument.

As we have stated, this is, and will be, regarded as the greatest single improvement in an automobile since the advent of that other epoch-making feature—the self-starter.

Here's a self-stopper—if you will!

Amazing in performance.

Does not affect steering unless it be to give you better control of the car when turning.

Actually stops car on wet asphalt quicker than 2-wheel brakes do on dry, with no skidding.

There's a feeling of security when driving on a wet or slippery surface that is indescribable and most reassuring.

Equalized as no other braking system has ever been equalized—to compensate, not only for difference in traction of each wheel, but for difference in wear of shoes and drums.

Drums are finely machined to ensure absolute uniformity and smoothness of operation. Another example of Rickenbacker thoroughness and care.

Think of this greatly increased factor of safety—100 per cent more than you have been accustomed to.

Here is a mighty long step towards the solution of the traffic problem.

You can stop in "a car length" at any legal speed—or glide to a velvety pause, in half the distance you are used to.

No, NOT hydraulic—pneumatic—or electric. Mechanical—positive—simple—sure—a system any child can understand.

4-wheel brakes wear longer because the coefficient of friction per square inch of braking surface is less than half of what it is in two.

Tires wear longer for the same reason. Brake linings, too.

Silent, and uniformly efficient at all times and under all conditions—for all four brakes are of the internal, expanding type—dust-proof, clean, sightly.

By the way—Rickenbacker brake drums are painted a brilliant-red, so that you will easily recognize this feature in a Rickenbacker Six.

DIRECTORS OF SCHOOLS MEET

Elect Officers For Coming Year at Gathering of County Officials

School directors and clerks from all parts of Burleigh county attended the annual meeting which was held here Thursday in the American Legion hall. A hundred and sixteen were present at the meeting which was called to order by Miss Madge Runey, county superintendent, who presided in the absence of the president or vice president.

The session was opened with community singing lead by Miss Elsie Bauer of Fargo. P. P. Bliss of McKenzie discussed "What the School Board Should Expect of a teacher" and Mrs. Ellis McNay, principal of the Canfield Consolidated school, presented the subject of "What the Teacher Should Expect of the School Board," during the morning session.

A group of grade school children from Moffit under the direction of Mrs. Jean Durnody gave a health demonstration which was followed by a talk on health by Mrs. E. P. Quinn. County Auditor S. J. Johnson explained to the school officials the new "certificates of indebtedness" in regard to improvements in school buildings and expansion.

At the close of the afternoon a discussion of questions sent to the question box department took place, and Miss Bauer sang a group of three songs.

P. P. Bliss of McKenzie was selected president of the organization or their next meeting; Mrs. Sarah Moffit of Baldwin, vice president; Mrs. Nellie Ewatts, Bismarck, secretary.

NEW LAWS GO INTO EFFECT AT MIDNIGHT

The limitations of levies fixed are: city and villages, 10 mills on the dollar of its net taxable assessed valuation; townships, 5 mills; school districts, common, independent or special, 14 mills; school districts giving two years high school work, 16 mills; giving four years high school work, 18 mills; maintaining consolidated schools, 10 mills; park districts, 2 mills; counties, for roads and bridge purposes, 1-1/2 mills. It is provided that all levies may be increased by vote of the residents of the districts. The limitations may be exceeded by 40 percent on majority vote and 50 percent on two-thirds vote.

Legislation with respect to state industries, which becomes effective July 1, includes the winding up of the affairs of the Home Building Association, directing the sale of the Drake flour mill, and the provision for appointment of a board of managers to supervise operations of the state-owned mill and elevator at Grand Forks.

A board of managers consisting of five members shall be appointed by Governor Neatos within 30 days after the taking effect of the act, which shall consist of at least one person who has been experienced in farming, at least two experienced in the milling and grain handling business, which may appoint a secretary and auditor and act as a board of directors for the state mill. While it is made the duty of the board, which shall meet at intervals, to direct the operations of the Grand Forks mill and elevator it is made the board's duty to take steps to sell the Drake mill and elevator by calling for bids on 90 days notice.

Wind Up Home Builders

In senate bill No. 277 all the power of the Home Building Association is transferred to the Industrial Commission. It is made the duty of the commission to wind up the affairs of the Home Building Association. With regard to disputes as to the price of homes built by the association, none of which have been fully paid and but one contract signed covering over 50 houses, it is provided that the matter of the value of the house may be submitted to arbitration. The home builder would name one applicant, the Industrial commission the second and the supreme court the third.

Another act provides for a tax to meet the deficit in Home Building Association, of one twentieth of one mill annually for such period as is needed to meet the deficit.

Among the milling laws passed was that authorizing the issuance of bonds on wheat purchased for the Grand Forks mill and elevator, designed to provide capital stock. This, however, was made an emergency measure.

Several bills affecting the Bank of North Dakota farm loan department were enacted, but do not greatly change the operations. The duty of collecting interest and amortization principal payments on the farm loans made is transferred from the state treasurer to the Bank of North Dakota. The limit of rural credits bonds was increased.

NEW BIDS TO BE RECEIVED

New bids for state bond issues will be received by the state Industrial Commission on Monday, a meeting of the commission scheduled for yesterday afternoon to receive new bids being postponed until that time. It is expected the Industrial Commission will in the meantime rearrange the state bond issues to be offered.

PEOPLE'S FORUM

Editor Bismarck Tribune, Sir:

Pertaining to an article appearing in the Bismarck Pioneer of date 6-20, headed "Detail of Troops Sent to Guard Beulah Mine" I feel, personally, like entering protest.

Either some space writer, adept at making a mountain out of a mole hill, or some interested party with ulterior motive, has cast aspersions upon our fair village.

The firing headed "I. W. W. blamed for the near riots of Sunday eve" is misleading. So far as I can ascertain there is not and was not at that time, an I. W. W. in town, unless perchance it was one of the non-union strike-breakers imported by the Operators—these men I do not know the history, reputation or character of. A careful canvass shows that all but two of the members of the Miners Union in town on Sunday evening were married men; men of respectability; of integrity and industry; men who, in the majority, hold title to homes and are considered permanent citizens here. The two unmarried men are also considered responsible men. Some I. W. W.s may have been here in the past, it would not be strange if some of the transients, drifters, coming and going had been I. W. W.s, or worse.

As to being "armed" I find absolutely no substantiation for this report.

For one I object both to these fellow citizens being traduced and to the reputation of the community for peace and lawfulness slandered by these reports and by calling out the Infantry on so slight a provocation. The Peace officers of this county and of this village are willing to stand up to any disturbance so far showing or likely to appear, the only probable result of sending the Militia or other troops here would be to stir up some real trouble, this might result.

Even had troops been needed it is to laugh to suppose that anyone thought that four men would stop any real trouble. The magnitude of their strikes usually assume.

We can imagine the eastern papers coming out with burning columns of dope about the mighty clashes between the bloodthirsty miners and the troops way out in the wilds of North Dakota, vividly portraying the gore flowing down our streets and the wild Indians casually scalping few drunken cowboys in the outskirts of the fray.

The President of the local Union on being interviewed said in effect "This I. W. W. cry, it seems, is raised by the so called Captains of Inquiry whenever any body of men begin to protest. We had no thought of 'Storming the bunk house' in the sense the Pioneer implies when we went peacefully down there en masse to have a heart to heart talk with these men who have been imported to take our places, we believe they have come here under misinformation or other misconception of the facts, do not realize the actual conditions and what led up to the present circumstances, for this reason we wished to converse with them. They seemed afraid to appear on the streets, or were ordered not to by the Operators possibly, so not being able to see them elsewhere we went—more in a spirit of sadness than of resentment—to the bunk house to plead and argue with them just a gentlemanly, pleasant presentation of our stand. Perhaps we did commit a trespass by going up on the Company's land, but it seems that a Company who has disregarded the laws of the State in several ways and continually could overlook one technical violation by others, we cannot see why the high toned violator of the law is any the less an Anarchist, doing it to save himself hundreds of dollars, than is the poor wretch who does it to gain a loaf of bread. We have posted signs notifying all comers of the strike, these warnings, which tend to turn back all conscientious working men are about our only weapon of self defence and insofar as they are legal ones we intend to use them.

After flatly refusing to concede to our just demand that a dependable check-weighman in whom we could trust be allowed to check the weights—at our expense—the Company to have one also, and to abide by the eight hour law as enacted in this State and practically forcing us to organize a local union now comes the Operator with a proposition that he will make concession as originally demanded provided we will violate our union obligations, what sort of men do they think we are? Many of our members who were against coming out in the first place are now determined to stick and to bear up under the suffering which this necessitates."

We care not to enter into the mooted questions pertaining to the merits and demerits, the benefits and disadvantages of unionism, the Miners demand and the Operators stand. The opinions and sympathies of our local citizenry differ, but when such prominent men as Supreme Court Justice Brandeis say "The right of labor to organize is recognized by law and should be fully recognized by employers. Most people admit the immense service which the labor unions have rendered to the community during the last twenty years in raising wages, shortening the hours of labor, bettering of conditions under which labor is performed and protecting women and children from excessive or ill-timed work; but the services which the labor unions can render in the future are even greater than they have rendered in the past. The employer needs the unions to stay him from the fall of vanity; the employees need them for their protection; the community needs them to raise the level of the citizen." And when such other prominent people such as Walter Clark, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina; such authorities as The Chamber of Commerce of the U. S.; The Industrial Committee of the Merchants Association of New York; Everett Ruess, President of the National Civic Federation; Thomas Evans, Secretary of the Central Coal Co.; Richard T. Ely, noted Economist, (in his "Political Economy" page 238), Justice McCarthy, the Historian; Henry White; John R. Commons; J. G. Brooks; J. Allen White; and others laud the unions it seems we should think twice before condemning them. There may be some features, some local conditions, some members which may not sanction, we find this in all institutions. Before judging let us at least look into the matter of personal interest in the contentions, realizing that Miners want, and deserve, large wages; that they may have more of life's conveniences and be enabled to spend more time out in the pure air and sunshine; that the operators naturally want lower scales that they may get more interest on their investments and keep away from bankruptcy. This is all beside the point, however, our protest is against this false I. W. W. cry.

MANDAN NEWS

Find Body Of Drowned Man

The body of Joseph Fogarty, who was drowned when the automobile in which he was riding went through the ice of the Missouri river near Fort Rice, was recovered early this week at Moberg, S. D., by employees having the care of the pontoon bridge there. The body had caught on one of the pontoons and was secured. The remains were brought up to Fort Rice yesterday and the funeral will be held Sunday morning.

Mrs. H. E. Hagerman, who left the latter part of May for Washington, and her daughter, Marie, who is a student at the University of Washington returned to the city Wednesday evening. Before returning to Mandan they visited in Grand View and in Maches, Wash., and stopped off enroute home at Livingstone for a few days.

B. E. Kennelly is expected home Saturday from the west coast, where he has been visiting for the past few weeks. His daughter, Miss Margaret, who has been making her home with her aunt, Mrs. Carl Beckenhauer in Seattle, will return with him to attend the funeral. Miss Bernice Kennelly is also here from Jamestown.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Ekroth of south of the city are parents of a daughter, born Thursday.

Funeral services for the late James N. Naylor were this afternoon at 1:15 at the Kennelly chapel. Rev. P. H. Davenport of Christ Episcopal church had charge. The remains will be taken to Hammond for burial.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Heater and son of Chicago, are guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Newton and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Heater for a couple of weeks.

Frazier Speaks In Minnesota

Senator Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota will campaign in Minnesota for Magnus Johnson, seeking election as United States Senator there on the Farmer-Labor ticket, according to information at the state capital. Senator Frazier, it is understood, will spend 11 days campaigning in Minnesota.

APPOINTMENT OF J. M. DEVINE

Appointment of J. M. Devine as immigration commissioner calls back into public service a man well fitted to the office. Governor Nestos has made a wise choice and one that was most generally endorsed by the business and agricultural interests of the state.

Mr. Devine since he first entered the state has made a close study of its needs. He has delivered thousands of addresses upon its resources and opportunities. But in addition to being an educator, and a former governor, he is also a dirt farmer. For years in the vicinity of Minot he conducted farming operations. He made many experiments in dry farming and since the pioneers' days has been a strong advocate of diversification.

A speaker of note, he will be able to carry North Dakota's message to the crowded sections of the east where tenants are laboring for a mere pittance. Gov. Devine has outlined in a general way his policy which of course must naturally be curtailed because of the small funds available.

If as he plans, he can interest the various cities and counties to send exhibits to the east or in other words coordinate the expenditures of the various counties in immigration work in one well defined and coherent plan, he will have done well for his state.

There is a spasmodic and aimless plan followed in various "booster" schemes. If Mr. Devine can organize these expenditures and direct them into productive channels, his success is assured. His acquaintance with the state and people in Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Illinois should tell in the contest for new settlers.

North Dakota needs more hands to bring her acres into greater production. Lignite mining is in its infancy and other resources need to be brought into active production which spells prosperity for North Dakota.

BANKERS LEAVE

A comforting spirit of optimism was manifested by bankers attending the state convention here. Bankers are not usually optimistic unless there is some foundation for such a feeling. With reports from the Missouri Slope stating that the crops southwest of Bismarck in many localities are far ahead of last year, and reports generally from the state indicating anything but a crop failure, the bankers may well feel confident of the future. The impressive address of Major Stanley Washburn, showing the potentialities of lignite to western North Dakota, ought to add to the store of confidence of those residing west of the James river.

The resolutions adopted by the bankers indicated a desire not to issue preachments nor to disturb a patient that appears to be recovering. People generally do not approve of branch banking, but would rather see independent institutions of strength and character built in North Dakota. They are not in any mood to see the flow of harvest labor interrupted by destructionists.

That the cause of some bank closings in the state, or at least an underlying cause, is the fact that there are too many banks which cannot well be denied by one who will give attention to the situation. If three banks attempt to serve a community where one bank will suffice, and in their competition accept greater risks than they should, or bid a higher rate of interest for deposits than is consistent with safety, and increase their overhead expenses to a burdensome point, it is certain that dire results will follow. Because a bank failure affects the community more than the bankers themselves it is highly important that sound banking principles be observed in North Dakota.

Before leaving the visiting bankers paid a nice compliment to the city of Bismarck for the entertainment provided, and The Tribune is glad to add a word of appreciation to the local bankers and others who so aided in maintaining the reputation of the city for generous hospitality.

GOD

Go to an old man for wisdom. Dr. Kaufmann Kohler, veteran rabbi and Hebrew educator, looks us over at the age of 80. He believes that, among the masses, idealism has given way to materialism and opportunism.

"There has been a decrease in religious fervor. The masses have little religion. The fear of God has gone, and with it a belief in a hereafter. We must all believe in a Divine Providence which leads the human race forward. History is not always a straightforward progress, but often goes in zigzag lines. We must have patience."

Most of our troubles right now are spiritual.

FATHER

An interesting father is discovered in Boston. He has never earned more than $12 a week. On this small wage he and his hard working wife have raised and educated nine children. Father can sit back on his oars now, for all nine are working and their combined incomes total $360 a week.

This doesn't put them in the millionaire class, not by a long shot. But if ever a man made a real success of life, it's this Boston father. There are millions like him—hard pluggers denying themselves to give their children "a better chance." They are the backbone of America, though they never step down to the footlights to receive a bouquet.

YANKEES

Lloyd George is expected to visit the United States next October. He's especially interested in our economic problems. The professional prominent citizens will tell him a lot, in this direction, but there's a landlord in Fall River, Mass., who could show them cards and spades.

This landlord owns a three-room flat in which 13 are living, and they recently appealed to the municipal rent commission because their rent had been raised to $3 a week. Ponder this situation from all angles and you have most of our economic problems, civilized congestion included, scrambled into one.

STABILIZING WHEAT PRICES
HAD STRONG ADVOCATES

The National Wheat Conference at Chicago will be a disappointment to many wheat growers and to others whose business depends upon a profitable price in the raising and sale of the crop. But the convention disclosed a strong sentiment for stabilizing the price of wheat.

The first problem is to reduce the present surplus and various experiments were proposed to this end. Resolutions expressed the views of a majority of those taking part in the discussion, but the discussion itself shows the sentiment of a large minority, favoring a fixed price by the federal government, as a stabilizing measure.

One way to reduce the surplus of wheat, according to the resolution, was to feed the grain to live stock, to hogs and poultry. This is a proposition that has all the inherent features ascribed to the farmers who propose to reduce production of the world's most necessary food.

Increase of both foreign and domestic consumption is a legitimate remedy and the people of the United States could heartily eat much more wheat. The advocates of no actual reduction in wheat raising eventually had control of the convention, and what the wheat farmer himself will realize from the conference is yet a matter of doubt. But the convention will help develop a sentiment that may yet reach the next congress and cause that body of politicians to act in a definite way to stabilize wheat prices, and to control production, in order to prevent abuse of the protection.

The plan of Congressman Young and others of North Dakota for a fixed price, coming as a remedy direct from the wheat raisers and business men of this state, had many supporters, but not enough to get by the clever and active opposition of those who make money by handling the wheat crop after it leaves the "farmers' hands."—Jamestown Daily Alert.

OIL AND CONSCIENCE

Because the present government of Mexico is about to guarantee holdings there is a nice gentle stir about taking her into the course of nations as a beloved sister or something. Judging from the recent press dispatches regarding the activities of the Mexican officials they are about as near the ideals of civilization as the Bolsheviks were in their recent widely heralded killings of clergymen.

If tolerance, bigotry and slavery of conscience by law is a mark of government stability, dignity and intelligence Mexico should by all means be admitted to the inner councils of the great nations of the earth, but these were not considered attributes of ideal government in the days when the founders of this country were drifting over here in sail boats, voluntary outcasts from their native land.

The force of gross materialism has so enveloped the ideals of many of us that we have entirely lost sight of just a few of the fundamentals of good government. To judge a government mainly by the manner in which it treats oil or other great property interests would be a bit humorous if it were not so conscientiously advocated. —Killdeer Herald.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

Nancy and Nick hurried along the streets of Lost Town toward the place the jack-knife had told them they would find Nancy's lost doll.

Bye and bye they came to Mistad Street and just as the jack-knife said, they saw a house. Oh, such a funny house made out of crackerboxes! It said Oyster Crackers and Soda Crackers and Sweet Crackers and Cheese Crackers and every other kind of cracker you ever heard of.

"I always wondered where all the empty cracker boxes went to," remarked Nick, "and now I know. They come to Lost Town to make homes for the poor lost things."

But Nancy was too anxious about Ruby Joan to listen.

Suddenly she cried out, "Oh, look! There she is, looking out of the window! Hello! Ruby Joan! We've come to get you, Oh, you dear dolly! I'm so glad to see you." And she ran toward the queer little house as fast as her fat little legs would carry her.

"Who are you?" called Ruby Joan. Nancy stopped, too amazed to take another step.

"Oh!" she said sadly. "Do people lose their memories in Lost Town, too? Don't you know me?" And she was about ready to cry.

"Oh, I believe you're Nancy," said the dolly quickly. "You sound exactly like her. Did you come to get me?"

"Yes, yes, yes," cried Nancy happily. "But don't you know me? And Nick, too?"

Ruby Joan shook her poor head. And then Nancy saw the trouble. The rag doll had lost both her shoe-button eyes and couldn't see.

"I came to Lost Town to find them," she said. "But they're not here."

"But how could you come," cried Nancy, "when you can't see?"

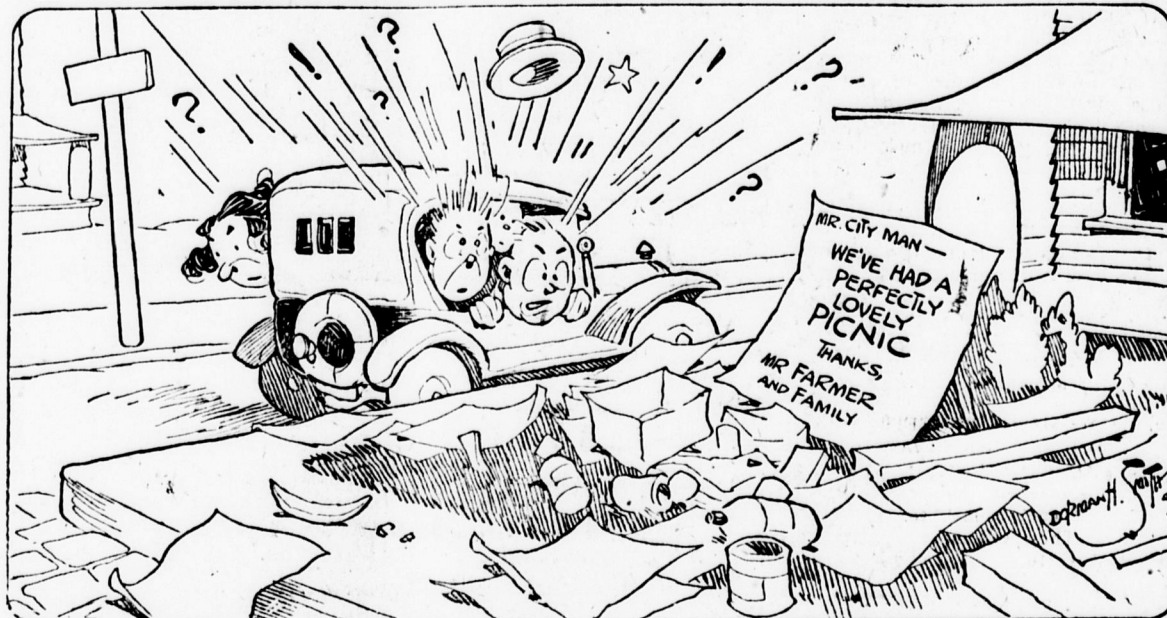

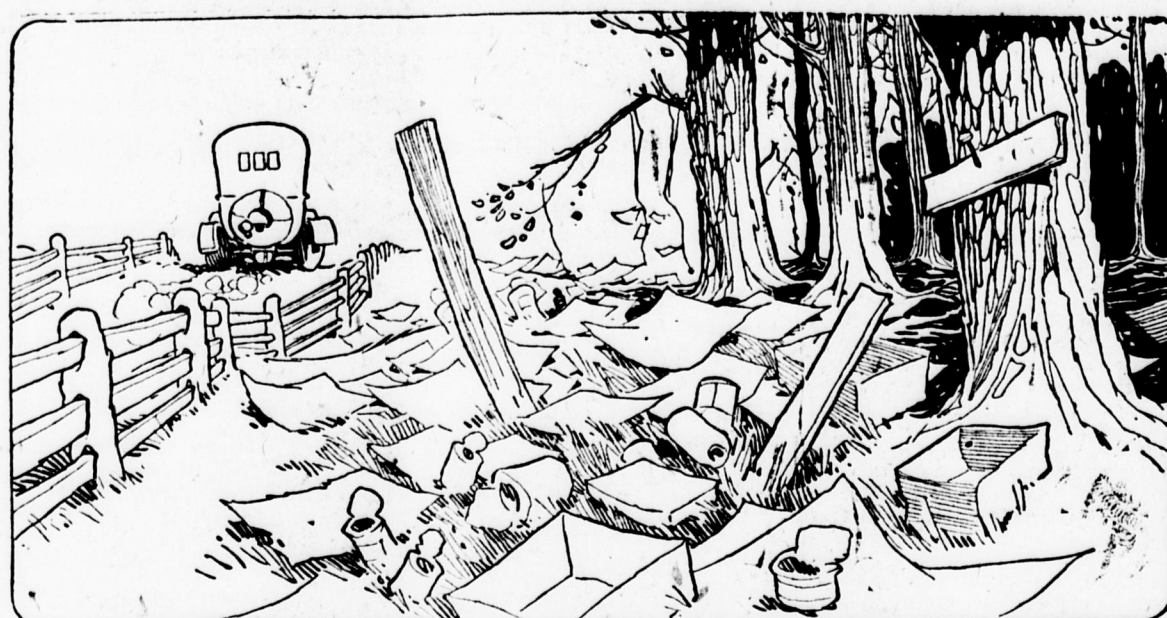

"The lost puppy brought me on his back," Ruby Joan told them.

To Be Continued.

WHAT'S SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE—

LETTER FROM PAULA PERIER TO JOHN ALDEN FRESCOTT.

MON BIEN AMI:

Jamais, never, did I think that anyone who had loved me so unkind could be as you have been.

Right it is that a man clings to his femina, mais surely no wife would unhappy be even when her husband gave a pitiful kindness to a woman whose need was as great as mine.

Oh mon ami! Think I could not that such trouble could to me come. Poor little me who has never anyone hurt by herself.

And I was so happy at first. To me you were so good—I did not see the future think at all.

All red with weeping are now my eyes. Turned down is my mouth with sorrow. You would not know the girl called Paula.

No longer is she one that men might call beautiful. Turned I have all my mirrors that I may not look into the sad eyes of the Paula who is here today—they make the heart of me ache so hard.

A friend to me said the other day, "You must have many letters from Jacques. Of money you are much in need. Why do you not sell them back to him? He would doubtless pay well for them and at least to you is due something."

I will confess, mon ami, at first this to do I was determined, but I cannot—I cannot do it. Those billet doux too precious are.

So I am sending them to you all but one—that one that you sent me when you left me in New York. When for the last time I read them, in my heart I knew I could never give that one up for it is all that in the future I shall have to keep me for my self-respect.

Do not be afraid, my friend. Paula does not wish to make you trouble. You she loves too much. At first she did not know this and she said to herself that she could be as insouciant as were you. But, alas! It was not so.

Poor little Paula's heart began to crumble into bits when staring in her face she found great sorrow, great disgrace. And now the wish that is her greatest is that she may hide away for herself and never, never see the face of you again.

Instead of selling you the letters, compelled I have been to sell that lovely necklace which you gave to me when we were in New York together. It seems you got a bargain, Jacques, when you bought it even if to me it was only a token of a thing spurious.

I got for it one thousand dollars. I remember you paid of that but half and so I am saying adieu and saying that out of your life the Fates shall let me go.

PAULA.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Michael, husband of Jenny. Pendean, disappears from his home on Dartmoor. Jenny engages the services of Mark Brendon, criminal investigator. Blood is found on the floor of Michael's new bungalow near Fogginator Quarry, where Pendean is last seen in the company of Jenny's uncle Robert Redmayne.

Witnesses testify to having seen Robert ride away on his motor bicycle with a heavy sack behind the saddle. The sack is found at a far distance.

Jenny goes to live with her uncle Bendigo Redmayne. Mark visits Bendigo and is introduced to Giuseppe Doria. Bendigo shows Brendon a letter supposed to come from Robert. Brendon falls in love with Jenny and sees in Doria a rival for her affections.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
He heard a singing voice and perceived that it was Doria, the motor boatman. Fifty yards from him Mark stood still, and the gardener abandoned his work and came forward. He was bareheaded and smoking a thin, black, Tuscan cigar with the colors of Italy on a band round the middle of it. Giuseppe recognized him and spoke first.

"It is Mr. Brendon, the sleuth! He has come with news for my master?"

"No, Doria—no news, worse luck; but I was this way—down at Plymouth again—and thought I'd look up Mrs. Pendean and her uncle. Why d'you call me 'sleuth'?"

"I read story-books of crime in which the detectives are 'sleuths.' It is American. Italians say 'birro,' English say 'police officer.'"

"How is everybody?" asked Mark. "Everybody very well. Time passes; tears dry; Providence watches."

"And you are still looking for the rich woman to restore the last of the Dorias to his castle?"

Giuseppe laughed, then he shut his eyes and sucked his evil-smelling cigar.

"We shall see as to that. Man proposes, God disposes. There is a god called Cupid, Mr. Brendon, who overturns our plans as yonder plough-share overturns the secret homes of beetle and worm."

Mark's pulse quickened. He guessed to what Doria possibly referred and felt concern but no surprise. The other continued.

"Ambition may succumb before beauty. Ancestral castles may crumble before the tide of love, as a child's sand building before the sea. Too true!"

Doria sighed and looked at Brendon closely. The Italian stood in a tight-fitting jersey of brown wool, a very picturesque figure against his dark background. The other had nothing to say and prepared to descend. He guessed what had happened and was concerned rather with Jenny Pendean than the romantic personality before him. But that the stranger could still be here, exiled in this lonely spot, told him as much as the man's words.

He was not chained to "Crow's Nest" with his great ambitions in abeyance for nothing. Mark, however, pretended to miss the significance of Giuseppe's confession.

"A good master—eh? I expect the old sea wolf is an excellent friend when you know his little ways."

Doria admitted it.

"He is all that I could wish and he likes me, because I understand him and make much of him. Every dog is a lion in his own kennel. Redmayne rules; but what is the good of a home to a man if he does not rule? We are friends. Yet, alas, we may not be for long—when—"

He broke off abruptly and went back to his lonely dwelling, rather astonished the detective proceeded.

"I'm a rough bird," he said, "but I keep my weather peeper open, and I didn't find it difficult to see, when you were here in the summer, that my fine niece took your fancy. She's the sort, apparently, that makes men lose their balance a bit."

"At this minute I'm in sight of a very vexatious problem; because my right hand—Giuseppe—Doria—has got his eyes on Jenny; and though he's priceless as a single man, and she's invaluable as a single woman, if the beggar gets round her and makes her fall in love with him presently, then they'll be married next year and that's goodbye to both of 'em!"

Mark found himself a good deal embarrassed by this confidence.

"I rather thought he was out for money—enough money to re-establish the vanished glories of his race."

"So he, was and, of course, he knows he can't do that with Jenny's twenty thousand; but love casts out a good many things besides fear. It blights ambition—for the time being anyway—and handicaps a man on every side in the race for life. All Doria wants now is Jenny Pendean, and he'll get her if I'm a judge. I wouldn't mind too much either, if they could stop along with me and go on as we're going; but of course that wouldn't happen."

Take Marriage Vows at Simple Home Wedding

At a pretty home wedding, Miss Myrtle Paris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Paris, became the bride of Henry Hanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hanson of Fergus Falls, Minn., at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Paris home on 408 Fifth street.

Rev. S. F. Halford of the McCabe Methodist church read the marriage service in the presence of members of the family.

The bride wore a simple gown of blue and white, and a corsage bouquet of sweetheart roses. An abundance of roses about the living room effected a pretty floral setting for the bride and groom.

Mr. Hanson is a popular local man. He received her educational training in the Bismarck schools, attending the high school and being a graduate of the Bismarck Hospital Training school with the class of '20. Mr. Hanson has been connected with the First National Bank of this city since 1910. He was a member of the hospital unit from Bismarck headed by Dr. E. P. Quinn and served for eighteen months in Europe during the World War.

After the marriage service a wedding dinner was served. Covers were laid at the charmingly appointed dinner for fourteen guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Hanson left this afternoon by automobile for a wedding trip through the Yellowstone and Glacier parks. After a couple of weeks outing they will be at home in Person Court.

LIBRARY YEAR CLOSES TODAY

Decisions During Year Are Gratifying Features

The library year in North Dakota closes on June 30. Among the matters presented at the meeting of the city library board, held in the library this morning, the donations to the library during the year were a gratifying feature. The gifts of the previous year of 1922 were unusually generous because of the book drive put on by the State Library Commission in Bismarck and enriched by goodly groups from the private libraries of Mr. F. L. Conklin, Mrs. Oscar Will, Mrs. N. O. Ramstad, Mr. Dingle, F. H. Davis, Mr. Kaufuss, G. D. Mann, C. B. Little, and Bishop Wehrle, the City Federation of Clubs and by the individual clubs of the city.

During the present year just ending similar collections have been donated from the private libraries of Bismarck, several special periodicals have been placed on the library free list for 1923, and the following gifts of great value to the library were received: Mr. Benton Baker of Bismarck presented his complete set, new series of Yale Review in library binding. The income from the two endowments of the Will family with a special donation of Mr. George F. Will purchased a complete set of Elbert Hubbard's Little Journeys and several volumes of poetry and travel. From Santa Barbara California came thirty volumes of Atlantic Monthly, beautifully bound in leather, the METHODIST EPWORTH LEAGUE. The Epworth League of the Methodist church is making plans for a patriotic meeting Sunday evening, July 1. Members of the church choir will assist with the music. Echo singing and other special music will form a part of the program.

LEAVE ON MOTOR TRIP. F. E. Kiley and sister, Miss Leoma, nurse at the St. Alexis hospital, left this morning for Shelby, Mont., to attend the Dempsey-Gibbons fight and for a motor trip through the Glacier Park. They expect to be gone for about three weeks.

CHOSEN AS DELEGATES. Misses Ruth Little, Beatrice Register, and Mae Storey have been selected as delegates from the Bismarck chapter to attend the Epworth League institute at Valley City, July 15. Various other members also plan to attend.

TO GENEVA FOR SUMMER. Mrs. John E. Nethercut left this morning for her former home at Lake Geneva, Wis., where she will spend the summer with her sisters. En route she will stop for a short visit in Chicago.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE. Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Dohn entertained last evening at a birthday surprise party for F. E. Galloway. The evening was pleasantly spent at cards.

VISITING FATHER. Miss Dorothy Blanding is spending the week end in Fargo with her father, O. D. Blanding who has been ill.

Mrs. Richholt Gives Handkerchief Shower

A handkerchief shower was given, complimentary to Miss Myrtle Paris yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Gerald Richholt at her home on Seventh St. A pleasant afternoon was spent by the guests in sewing for the bride whose marriage to Henry Hanson took place today. At 5 o'clock a course luncheon was served, covers being laid for twelve at the dining room table, which was charmingly decorated in pink and white. A large basket, decorated to appear like a basket, formed a beautiful centerpiece for the table. Attached to streamers extending from the basket containing the gifts were the place cards bearing designs of cupid. Wild roses and babies' breath were used for floral decorations.

Return From Meet Of War Mothers

Mrs. Peter Reid and Mrs. C. G. Boise, delegates from the Fort Lincoln Chapter of War Mothers, returned last night from Kenmare where they attended the state convention of War Mothers from June 27 to 28.

An important part of the last day's session was the dedication of the state banner. Rev. Wilton Johnson of Kenmare delivered the address for the occasion and Mrs. Basil Two Bears of Cannonball, vice president of her chapter, and mother of Albert Grass, grandson of chief John Grass, accepted the standard. Mrs. Gray Bull of Cannonball was the only other Indian War Mother present at the meeting.

Mrs. Hunke of Mandan was elected second vice president at the meeting; Mrs. Dollahon of Kenmare, auditor; Mrs. Danielson, Enderlin, treasurer.

W. C. T. U. Holds Monthly Meeting

The monthly meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held Tuesday afternoon, July 3, at 3 o'clock at the First Baptist church with Mrs. L. R. Johnson, Mrs. G. B. Newcomb, and Mrs. C. W. Smith as hostesses.

The topical program for the meeting is "National Independence Day." Members will respond to roll call with patriotic quotations.

Mrs. C. G. Boise will be leader of the program. The L. T. L. under the direction of Mrs. J. W. Deemy will give a playette entitled, "Mother Goose Land Transformed." A cordial invitation is extended to all interested in the W. C. T. U. work to be present.

Receive News Of Marriage

Friends of the newly elected Chancellor of Mont. University, Melvin A. Brannon have received cards in Bismarck announcing his marriage on June 27th to Mrs. Anna Lytle Tarrabill. They will be at home in Helena, Montana after September 1st. President Brannon was for many years Dean of the College of Arts in the University of North Dakota and has since been president of the University of Idaho and of Beloit College Wisconsin. He resigned the presidency of Beloit at the close of the present year to take up the Chancellorship of the four schools comprising the University of Montana, with headquarters at Helena. From Bismarck, as from almost every town and hamlet of the state and wherever the North Dakota University students and faculty have gone, will pour out the congratulations and good wishes for a happy and successful future to Chancellor

LOCAL MAN ORDAINED. P. E. Nystrom of this city was ordained to the ministry during the district meeting of the North Dakota Baptist association at Page this week. Rev. Nystrom has been appointed colporteur missionary to the western part of the state.

Ministers Return From Conference

Reverends L. R. Johnson, P. E. Nystrom and Geo. B. Newcomb, delegates to the North Dakota Baptist association annual meeting at Page, have returned to the city. Mr. Johnson's part on the program was conducting a conference on "Sunday School Organization and Management." Mr. Nystrom passed a very satisfactory examination and was received into the Baptist ministry and Mr. Newcomb was chosen to preach the "Recognition sermon." Mr. Nystrom has been appointed by the Baptist State convention to the territory west of the Missouri river as Colporteur missionary. His headquarters will be Bismarck. The meeting at Page was well attended and the reports from the several churches in the main were very encouraging, some showing an increase in membership of fully twenty per cent.

LIBRARY YEAR CLOSING TODAY

Donations During Year Are Gratifying Features

The library year in North Dakota closes on June 30. Among the features presented at the meeting of the city library board, held in the library this morning, the donations to the library during the year were a gratifying feature. The gifts of the previous year of 1922 were unusually generous because of the book drive put on by the State Library Commission in Bismarck and enriched by goodly groups from the private libraries of Mr. F. L. Conklin, Mrs. Oscar Will, Mrs. N. O. Rasmussen, Mr. Dingle, F. H. Davis, Mr. Kaufuss, G. D. Mann, C. B. Little, and Bishop Wehrle, the City Federation of Clubs and by the individual clubs of the city.

During the present year just ending smaller collections have been donated from the private libraries of Bismarck, several special periodicals have been placed on the library free list for 1923, and the following gifts of great value to the library were received: Mr. Benton Baker of Bismarck presented his complete set, new series of Yale Review in library binding. The income from the two endowments of the Will family with a special donation of Mr. George E. Will, purchased a complete set of Elbert Hubbard's Little Journeys and several volumes of poetry and travel. From Santa Barbara California came thirty volumes of Atlantic Monthly, beautifully bound in leather, the gift of Mr. E. L. Patterson of Patterson Land Company. Mr. Patterson also presented four volumes of new fiction. Mrs. Hattie Eppinger of Bismarck has turned over to the library the choicest portion of her private library, consisting of about one hundred seventy volumes. A beautifully bound set of Ridpath's Library of Universal Literature in twenty-five volumes is included in this gift. The library has recently assembled rather a worthy section of music in reference books and periodicals, and in this department Mrs. M. M. Ruder has, this week, placed a bust of Beethoven.

From the reading tables of very many homes in Bismarck have been sent magazines for the very extensive periodical section of the library. These gifts of periodical literature are gradually filling out the files for reference. Friends and patrons continue to bring in current fiction and class material as books accumulate in their homes.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

APPOINTMENT OF J. M. DEVINE
Appointment of J. M. Devine as immigration commissioner calls back into public service a man well fitted to the office: Governor Nostes has made a wise choice and one that was most generally endorsed by the business and agricultural interests of the state.

Mr. Devine since he first entered the state has made a close study of its needs. He has delivered thousands of addresses upon its resources and opportunities. But in addition to being an educator, and a former governor, he is also a dirt farmer. For years in the vicinity of Minot he conducted farming operations. He made many experiments in dry farming and since the pioneers' days has been a strong advocate of diversification.

A speaker of note, he will be able to carry North Dakota's message to the crowded sections of the east where tenants are laboring for a mere pittance. Gov. Devine has outlined in a general way his policy which of course must naturally be curtailed because of the small funds available.

If as he plans, he can interest the various cities and counties to send exhibits to the east or in other words coordinate the expenditures of the various counties in immigration work in a well defined and coherent plan, he will have done well for his state.

There is a spasmodic and aimless plan followed in various "booster" schemes. If Mr. Devine can organize these expenditures and direct them into productive channels, his success is assured. His acquaintance with the state and people in Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Illinois should tell in the contest for new settlers.

North Dakota needs more hands to bring her acres into greater production. Lignite mining, in its infancy and other resources need to be brought into active production which spells prosperity for North Dakota.

BANKERS LEAVE

A comforting spirit of optimism was manifested by bankers attending the state convention here. Bankers are not usually optimistic unless there is some foundation for such a feeling. With reports from the Missouri Slope stating that the crops southwest of Bismarck in many localities are far ahead of last year, and reports generally from the state indicating anything but a crop failure, the bankers may well feel confident of the future. The impressive address of Major Stanley Washburn, showing the potentialities of lignite to western North Dakota, ought to add to the store of confidence of those residing west of the James river.

The resolutions adopted by the bankers indicated a desire not to issue prepayments nor to disturb a patient that appears to be recovering. People generally do not approve of branch banking, but would rather see independent institutions of strength and character built in North Dakota. They are not in any mood to see the flow of harvest labor interrupted by destructionists.

That the cause of some bank closings in the state, or at least an underlying cause, is the fact that there are too many banks which cannot well be denied by one who will give attention to the situation. If three banks attempt to serve a community where one bank will suffice, and in their competition accept greater risks than they should, or bid a higher rate of interest for deposits than is consistent with safety, and increase their overhead expenses to a burdensome point, it is certain that dire results will follow. Because a bank failure affects the community more than the bankers themselves it is highly important that sound banking principles be observed in North Dakota.

Before leaving the visiting bankers paid a nice compliment to the city of Bismarck for the entertainment provided, and The Tribune is glad to add a word of appreciation to the local bankers and others who so aided in maintaining the reputation of the city for generous hospitality.

GOD

Go to an old man for wisdom. Dr. Kaufmann Kohler, veteran rabbi and Hebrew educator, looks us over at the age of 80. He believes that, among the masses, idealism has given way to materialism and opportunism.
"There has been a decrease in religious fervor. The masses have little religion. The fear of God has gone, and with it a belief in a hereafter. We must all believe in a Divine Providence which leads the human race forward. History is not always a straightforward progress, but often goes in zigzag lines. We must have patience."
Most of our troubles right now are spiritual.

FATHER

An interesting father is discovered in Boston. He has never earned more than $12 a week. On this small wage he and his hard working wife have raised and educated nine children. Father can sit back on his oars now, for all nine are working and their combined incomes total $360 a week.
This doesn't put them in the millionaire class, not by a long shot. But if ever a man made a real success of life, it's this Boston father. There are millions like him—hard pluggers denying themselves to give their children "a better chance." They are the backbone of America, though they never step down to the footlights to receive a bouquet.

YANKEES

Lloyd George is expected to visit the United States next October. He's especially interested in our economic problems. The professional prominent citizens will tell him a lot, in this direction, but there's a landlord in Fall River, Mass., who could show them cards and spades.
This landlord owns a three-room flat in which 13 are living, and they recently appealed to the municipal rent commission because their rent had been raised to $3 a week. Ponder this situation from all angles and you have most of our economic problems, civilized congestion included, scrambled into one.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

STABILIZING WHEAT PRICES HAD STRONG ADVOCATES

The National Wheat Conference at Chicago will be a disappointment to many wheat growers and others whose business depends upon a profitable price in the raising and sale of the crop. But the convention did lose a strong sentiment for stabilizing the price of wheat.

The first problem is to reduce the present surplus, and various experiments were proposed to this end. Resolutions expressed the views of a majority of those taking part in the discussion, but the discussion itself shows the sentiment of a large minority, favoring a fixed price by the federal government, as a stabilizing measure.

One way to reduce the surplus of wheat, according to the resolution, was to feed the grain to live stock, to hogs, and poultry. This is a proposition that has all the inherent features ascribed to the farmers who propose to reduce production of the world's most necessary food.

Increased both foreign and domestic consumption is a legitimate remedy and the people of the United States could healthfully eat much more wheat. The advocates of no actual reduction in wheat raising eventually had control of the convention, and while the wheat farmer himself will realize from the conference is yet a matter of doubt. But the convention will help develop a sentiment that may yet reach the next congress and cause that body of politicians to act in a definite way to stabilize wheat prices, and to control production, in order to prevent abuse of the protection.

The plan of Congressman Young and others of North Dakota for a fixed price, coming as a remedy direct from the wheat raisers and business men of this state, had many supporters, but not enough to give the clever and active opposition of those who make money in handling the wheat crop after it leaves the "farmers' hands."—Jamestown Daily Alert.

OIL AND CONSCIENCE

Because the present government of Mexico is about to guarantee production of oil property and holding there is a nice genteel stir about taking her into the course of nations as a beloved sister or something. Judging from the recent press dispatches regarding the activities of the Mexican officials, they are about as near the limits of civilization as the Bolsheviks were in their recent widely heralded killings of clergymen.

If tolerance, bigotry and slavery of conscience by law is a mark of government stability, dignity and intelligence Mexico should by all means be admitted to the inner councils of the great nations of the earth. A few of the fundamental attributes of ideal government in the days when the founders of this country were drifting over here in sail boats, voluntary outcasts from their native lands.

The fog of gross materialism has so enveloped the ideals of many of us that we have entirely lost sight of just a few of the fundamentals of good government. To judge a government mainly by the manner in which it treats oil or other great property interests would be subtly humorous if it were not so conscientiously advocated. — Killdeer Herald

By Olive Roberts Barton

Nancy and Nick hurried along the streets of Lost Town toward the place the jack-knife had told them they would find Nancy's lost doll.

Bye and bye they came to Mis-laid Street and just as the jack-knife said, they saw a house. Oh, such a funny house made out of crackerboxes! It said Oyster Crackers and Soda Crackers and Sweet Crackers and Cheese Crackers and every other kind of cracker you ever heard of.

Nancy always wondered where all the empty cracker boxes went to, remarked Nick, "and now I know. They come to Lost Town to make homes for the poor lost things."

But Nancy was too anxious about Ruby Joan to listen. Suddenly she cried out, "Oh, look! There she is looking out of the window! Hello! Hello, Ruby Joan! We've come to get you, Oh, you dear doll! I'm so glad to see you. And she ran toward the queer little house as fast as her fat little legs would carry her.

"Who are you?" called Ruby Joan. Nancy stopped, too amazed to take another step.

"Oh!" she said sadly. "Do people lose their memories in Lost Town, too? Don't you know me?" And she was about ready to cry.

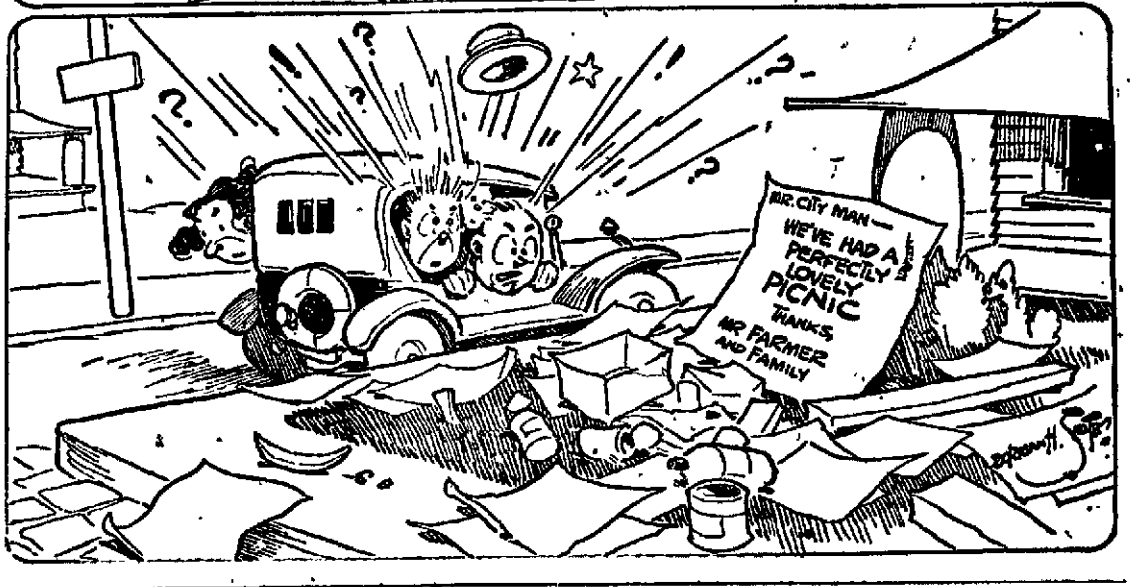

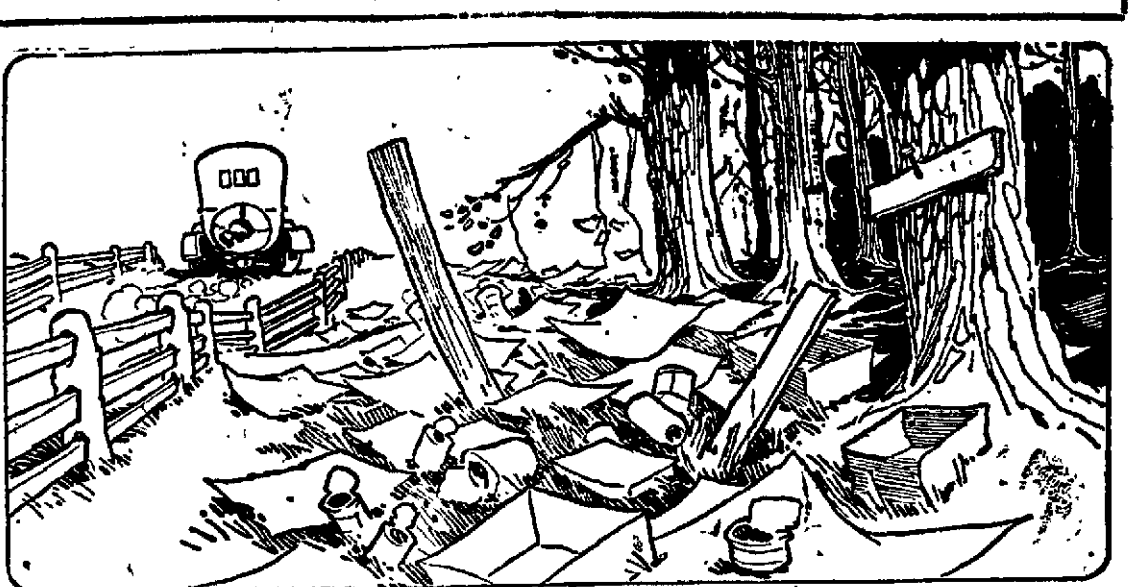

"Oh, I believe you're Nancy," said the doll quickly. "You sound exactly like her. Did you come to get me?"

"Yes, yes, yes," cried Nancy happily. "But don't you know me? And Nick, too?"

Ruby Joan shook her poor head. And then Nancy saw the trouble. The rag doll had lost both her shoe-button eyes and couldn't see.

"I came to Lost Town to find them," she said. "But they're not here."
"But how could you come," cried Nancy, "when you can't see?"
"The lost puppy brought me on his back," Ruby Joan told them.

An Immense Story of Love and Adventure
By J. M. Devine

Letter from Paula Perier to John Alden Prescott.

MON BIEN AMI:
Jamais, never, did I think that anyone who had loved me so unkind could be as you have been.

Right it is that a man clings to his femme, mais surely no wife would unhappy be even when her husband gave a pitiful kindness to a woman whose need was as great as mine.

Oh mon ami! Think I could not that such trouble could to me come? Poor little me who has never anyone hurt by herself.

And I was so happy at first. To me you were so good—I did not of the future think at all.

All red with weeping are now my eyes. Turned down is my mouth with sorrow. You would not know the girl called Paula.

No longer is she one that men might call beautiful.

Turned I have all my mirrors that I may not look into the sad eyes of the Paula who is here today—they make the heart of me ache so hard.

A friend to me said the other day, "You must have many letters from Jacques. Of money you are much in need. Why do you not sell them back to him? He would doubtless pay well for them and at least to you is due something."

I will confess, mon ami, at first this to do I was determined, but I cannot—I cannot do it. Those billet doux too precious are.

So I am sending them to you all but one—that one that you sent me when you left me in New York. When for the last time I read them, in my heart I knew I could never give that one up for it is all that in the future I shall have to keep me for my self-respect.

Do not be afraid, my friend. Paula does not wish to make you trouble. You did not know this and she said to herself that she could be as insouciant as were you. But, alas! It was not so.

Poor little Paula's heart began to crumble into bits when staring in her face she found great sorrow, great disgrace. And now the wish that is her greatest is that she may hide away for herself and never, never see the face of you again.

Instead of selling you the letters, compelled I have been to sell that lovely necklace which you gave to me when we were in New York together. It seems you got a bargain, Jacques, when you bought it even if to me it was only a token of a thing spurious.

I got for it one thousand dollars. I remember you said that but half had so I am saying adieu and saying that out of your life the Fates shall let me go.

PAULA.

A THOUGHT

If thou hast done foolishly in lifting up thyself, or if thou hast thought evil, lay thine hand upon thy mouth.—Prov. 30:32.

It is better to remain silent than to speak the truth foolishly, and spoil an excellent dish by covering it with bad sauce.—St. Francis de Sales.

RED REDMAYNES
EDEN PHILPOTTS
COPYRIGHT 1923 THE PHILPOTTS COMPANY
RELEASED BY NEA SERVICE INC., ABBOT, MONT. NEWS 576.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Michael, husband of Jenny Pendean, disappears from his home on Dartmoor, Jenny engages the services of Mark Brendon, criminal investigator. Blood is found on the floor of Michael's new bungalow near Fogginton Quarry, where Pendean is last seen in the company of Jenny's uncle Robert Redmayne.

Witnesses testify to having seen Robert ride away on his motor bicycle with a heavy sack behind the saddle. The sack is found at a far distance.

Jenny goes to live with her uncle Bendigo Redmayne. Mark visits Bendigo and is introduced to Giuseppe Doria. Bendigo shows Brendon a letter supposed to come from Robert. Brendon falls in love with Jenny and sees in Doria a rival for her affections.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
He heard a singing voice and perceived that it was Doria, the motor boatman. Fifty yards from him Mark stood still, and the gardener abandoned his work and came forward. He was bareheaded and smoking a thin, black, Tuscan cigar with the colors of Italy on a band round the middle of it. Giuseppe recognized him and spoke first.

It is Mr. Brendon, the sleuth. He has come with news for my master."

"No, Doria—no news, worse luck; but I was this way—down at Plymouth again—and thought I'd look up Mrs. Pendean and her uncle. Why d'you call me 'sleuth'?"

"I read story-books of crime in which the detectives are 'sleuths.' It is American. Italians say 'shiro,' England says 'police officer.'"

"How is everybody?" asked Mark. "Everybody very well. Time passes—tears dry; Providence watches."

"And you are still looking for the rich woman to restore the last of the Doria to his castle?"

Giuseppe laughed, then he shut his eyes and sucked his evil-smelling cigar.

"We shall see as to that. Man proposes, God disposes. There is a god called Cupid, Mr. Brendon, who overturns our plans as yonder ploughshare overturns the secret homes of beetle and worm."

Mark's pulse quickened. He guessed to what Doria possibly referred and felt concerned rather with Jenny Pendean than with the man. "Ambition may succumb before beauty. Ancestral castles may crumble before the tide of love, as a child's sand building before the sea. Too true!"

Doria sighed and looked at Brendon closely. The Italian stood in a tight-fitting jorsey of brown wool, a very picturesque figure against his dark background. The other had nothing to say and prepared to descend. He guessed what had happened and felt concerned rather with Jenny Pendean than with the man.

"But that stranger could still be here, exiled in this lonely spot, told him quite as much as the man's words! He was not chained to 'Crow's Nest' with his great ambitions in abeyance for nothing. Mark, however, pretended to miss the significance of Giuseppe's confession.

"A good master—eh? I expect the old sea wolf is an excellent friend when you know his little ways."

Doria admitted it. "He is all that I could wish and he likes me, because I understand him and make much of him. Every dog is a lion in his own kennel. Redmayne rules; but what is the good of a home to a man if he does not rule? We are friends. Yet, alas, we may not be for long—when—"

He broke off abruptly and went back to his work. But he turned a moment and spoke again as Brendon proceeded.

"Madonna is at home," he shouted and Mark understood to whom he referred.

He had reached "Crow's Nest" in five minutes and it was Jenny Pendean who welcomed him.

"Uncle's in his tower," she said. "I'll call him in a minute. But tell me first if there is anything to tell. I am glad to see you—very!"

She was excited and her great, misty blue eyes shone. She seemed more lovely than ever.

"Nothing to report, Mrs. Pendean. At least—no, nothing at all. I've exhausted every possibility. And you—you have nothing, or you would have let me hear it."

"There is nothing," she said. "Uncle Ben would most certainly have told me if any news had reached him. I am sure that he is dead—Robert Redmayne."

"I think so, too. Tell me a little about yourself, if I may venture to ask."

"You have been so thoughtful for me. And I appreciated it. I'm all right, Mr. Brendon. There is still my life to live and I find ways of being useful here."

"You are contented, then?"

"Yes. Contentment is a poor substitute for happiness; but I am contented."

He longed to speak intimately, yet had no excuse for doing so.

"How much I wish it was in my power to brighten your content into happiness again," he said. She smiled at him.

"Thank you for such a friendly wish. I am sure you mean it."

"Indeed I do."

"Perhaps I shall come to London some day, and then you would be friend me a little."

"How much I hope you will—soon."

"But I am dull and stupid still. I have great relapses and sometimes cannot even endure my uncle's voice. Then I shut myself up. I chain myself like a savage thing, for a time, till I am patient again."

"There are plenty—even here, though you might not guess it. Giuseppe Doria sings to me and I go out in the launch now and then. I always travel to and fro that way when I have to visit Dartmouth for Uncle Ben and for the household provision. And I am to have chickens to rear in the spring."

"The Italian—"

"He is a gentleman, Mr. Brendon—a great gentleman, you might say. I do not understand him very well. But I am safe with him. He would do nothing base or small. He confided in me when first I came, though he had a reason to find a rich wife, who would love him and enable him to restore the castle of the Doria in Italy and build up the family again. He is full of romance and has such energy and queer, magnetic power that I can quite believe he will achieve his hopes some day."

"Does he still possess this ambition?"

Jenny was silent for a moment. Her eyes looked out of the window over the restless sea.

"Why not?" she asked.

"He is, I should think, a man that women might fall in love with."

"Oh yes—he is amazingly handsome and there are fine thoughts in him."

Mark felt disposed to warn her but felt that any counsel from him would be an impertinence. She seemed to read his mind, however.

"I shall never marry again," she said.

"Nobody would dare to ask you to do so—nobody knows all that you have been called to bear. Not for many a long day yet, I mean, he answered awkwardly."

"You understand," she replied and took his hand impulsively. "There is a great gulf I think fixed between us Anglo-Saxons and the Latins. Their minds move far more swiftly than ours. They are more hungry to get everything possible out of life. Doria is a child in many ways; but a delightful, poetical child. I think England rather chills him; yet he vows there are no rich women in Italy. He longs for Italy. All the same I expect he will go home again presently. He will leave Uncle Ben in the spring—so he confides to me, but do not whisper it, for my uncle thinks highly of him and would hate to lose him. He can do everything and anticipates our wishes and whims in the most magical way."

"Well, I must not keep you any longer."

"Indeed you are not doing that. I am very, very glad to see you, Mr. Brendon. You are going to stop for dinner? We always dine in the middle of the day."

"May I?"

"You must. And tea also. Come up to Uncle Bendigo now. I'll leave you with him for an hour. Then dinner will be ready. Giuseppe always joins us. You won't mind?"

"The last of the Doria! I've probably never shared a meal with such high company!"

She led him up the flight of stairs to the old sailor's sanctum.

"Mr. Brendon to see us, Uncle Ben," she said and Mr. Redmayne took his eye from the big telescope.

"A blow's coming," he announced. "Wind's shifted a point to southward. Dirty weather already in the Channel."

They shook hands and Jenny disappeared. Bendigo was pleased to see Brendon, but his interest in his brother had apparently waned. He avoided the subject of Robert Redmayne, though he revealed other matters in his mind which he pronounced with a directness that rather astonished the detective.

"I'm—"

"I keep my mouth peeper open, and I didn't find it difficult to see, when you were here in the summer, that my fine niece took your fancy. She's the sort, apparently, that makes men lose their balance a bit."

"At this minute I'm in sight of a very vexatious problem; because my right hand—Giuseppe Doria—has got his eyes on Jenny; and though he's priceless as a single man and she's invaluable as a single woman, if the beggar gets round her and makes her fall in love with him presently, then they'll be married next year, and that's goodbye to both of 'em!"

Mark found himself a good deal embarrassed by this confidence.

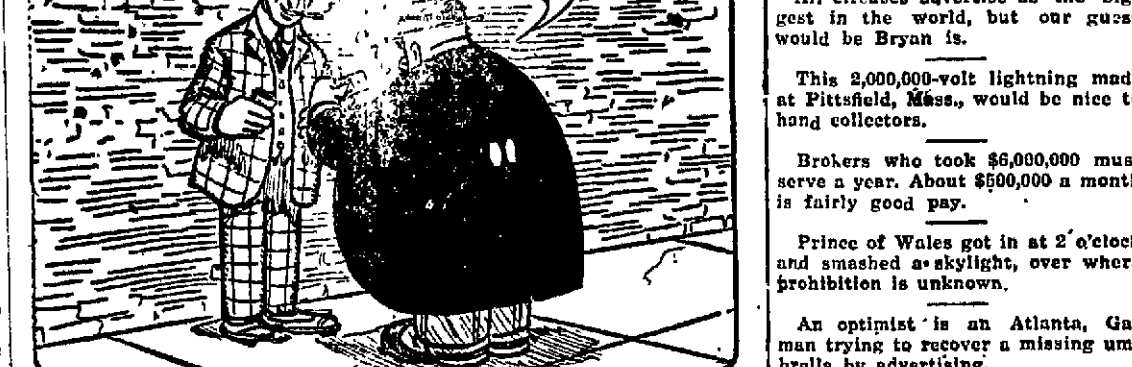

"I rather thought he was out for money—enough money to re-establish the vanished glories of his race."

"So he was, and of course, he knows he can't do that with Jenny's twenty thousand; but love casts out a good many things besides fear. It blights ambition—for the time being, anyway—and handles a man on every side in the race for life. All Doria wants now is Jenny Pendean, and he'll get her if I'm a judge. I wouldn't mind too much either, if they could stop along with me and go on as we're going; but of course that wouldn't happen."

DEMPSEY - GIBBONS FIGHT IS ASSURED

MONTANA MEN GIVE CASH FOR STATE'S HONOR

Twenty Wealthy Residents of the State Pledge $100,000 Final Payment

PAY MONEY MONDAY

Dempsey Will Get His First Glimpse of Shelby Just Before Fight

Great Falls, Mont., June 30.—Safe over its most dangerous financial crisis the Jack Dempsey-Tommy Gibbons heavyweight fight, is assured a decision in Shelby, July 4, as the result of one of the most remarkable financial achievements in the history of glove fighting.

When all indications pointed to a complete collapse of the fight yesterday, George Stanton, the Great Falls banker, conceived the idea of appealing to 20 wealthy business men in the state to save what he terms the honor of Montana by having them advance $5,000 each to take up the final $100,000 installment of Dempsey's $500,000 guarantee.

Within five hours the $100,000 was pledged. Although Mr. Stanton declined to divulge the names of the individuals contributing the money it was said that $30,000 was raised in Great Falls, $20,000 in Billings, $25,000 in Butte and the balance in Shelby and Lewistown. The money will be here in the bank before night, Stanton said, and will be turned over to Jack Kearns, manager of the heavyweight champion on Monday in accordance with the terms of the contract.

The 39 men subscribing to the $100,000 installment will receive in return 33 1/3 interest in the moving pictures of the fight and the promise that the money will be refunded on the first cash received on the sale of tickets. Any loss under the terms of the agreement will be shouldered by the contributors on a pro-rata basis.

Dempsey today entered his last two days of training. Manager Kearns plans to have him box four light rounds this afternoon. Tomorrow he will conclude his last work with the gloves Monday and Tuesday will find the champion doing a little light training merely to keep his mind occupied.

He will leave for Shelby Wednesday, getting his first glimpse of the town a few hours before entering the ring.

SHELBY CELEBRATES

Shelby, Mont., June 30.—Elated as it has not been since Jack Dempsey first signed to risk his heavyweight title against Tom Gibbons, Shelby is celebrating today. A loud was lifted from Shelby's shoulders last night when Mayor Jim Johnson, treasurer of the fight, announced over the telephone:

"You can tell the whole world there will be a fight on Wednesday, July 4, at 3 o'clock in the Shelby arena."

Notice of the mayor's announcement spread quickly along the crowded main streets. Swash-buckling cowboys in clapping chaps and clanking spurs effete easterners, grim workers from the oil fields, merchants, confectionaries and the helter-skelter population of this town of clapboard houses and tents received it with cheers.

Impromptu celebrations were arranged and dance halls and theaters were filled with smiling, cheerful Shelyites.

NINTH INNING RALLY BEATS THE ATHLETICS

Yankees Take Second Game of Big Series from Connie Mack's Team

Chicago, June 30.—After a ninth inning rally had given them three runs to tie the score Connie Mack's Athletics dropped the second game of their series with the Yankees when Ernie Johnson, a pinch-hitter, cracked out a single with the bases full for the winning score.

While the Giants and Boston were idle because of rain Cincinnati and Pittsburgh divided a double-header in their contest for second place in the National League. Luque added another victory to his list when he blanked the Pirates in the opener. Bagby in the second game was superior to Benton and Pittsburgh won.

Brooklyn staged a batting orgy against the humble Phillies and trounced them 14 to 5. The Robins annexed 25 hits, including three home runs. The Phillies also hit hard, getting 14 blows, three for 14 bases.

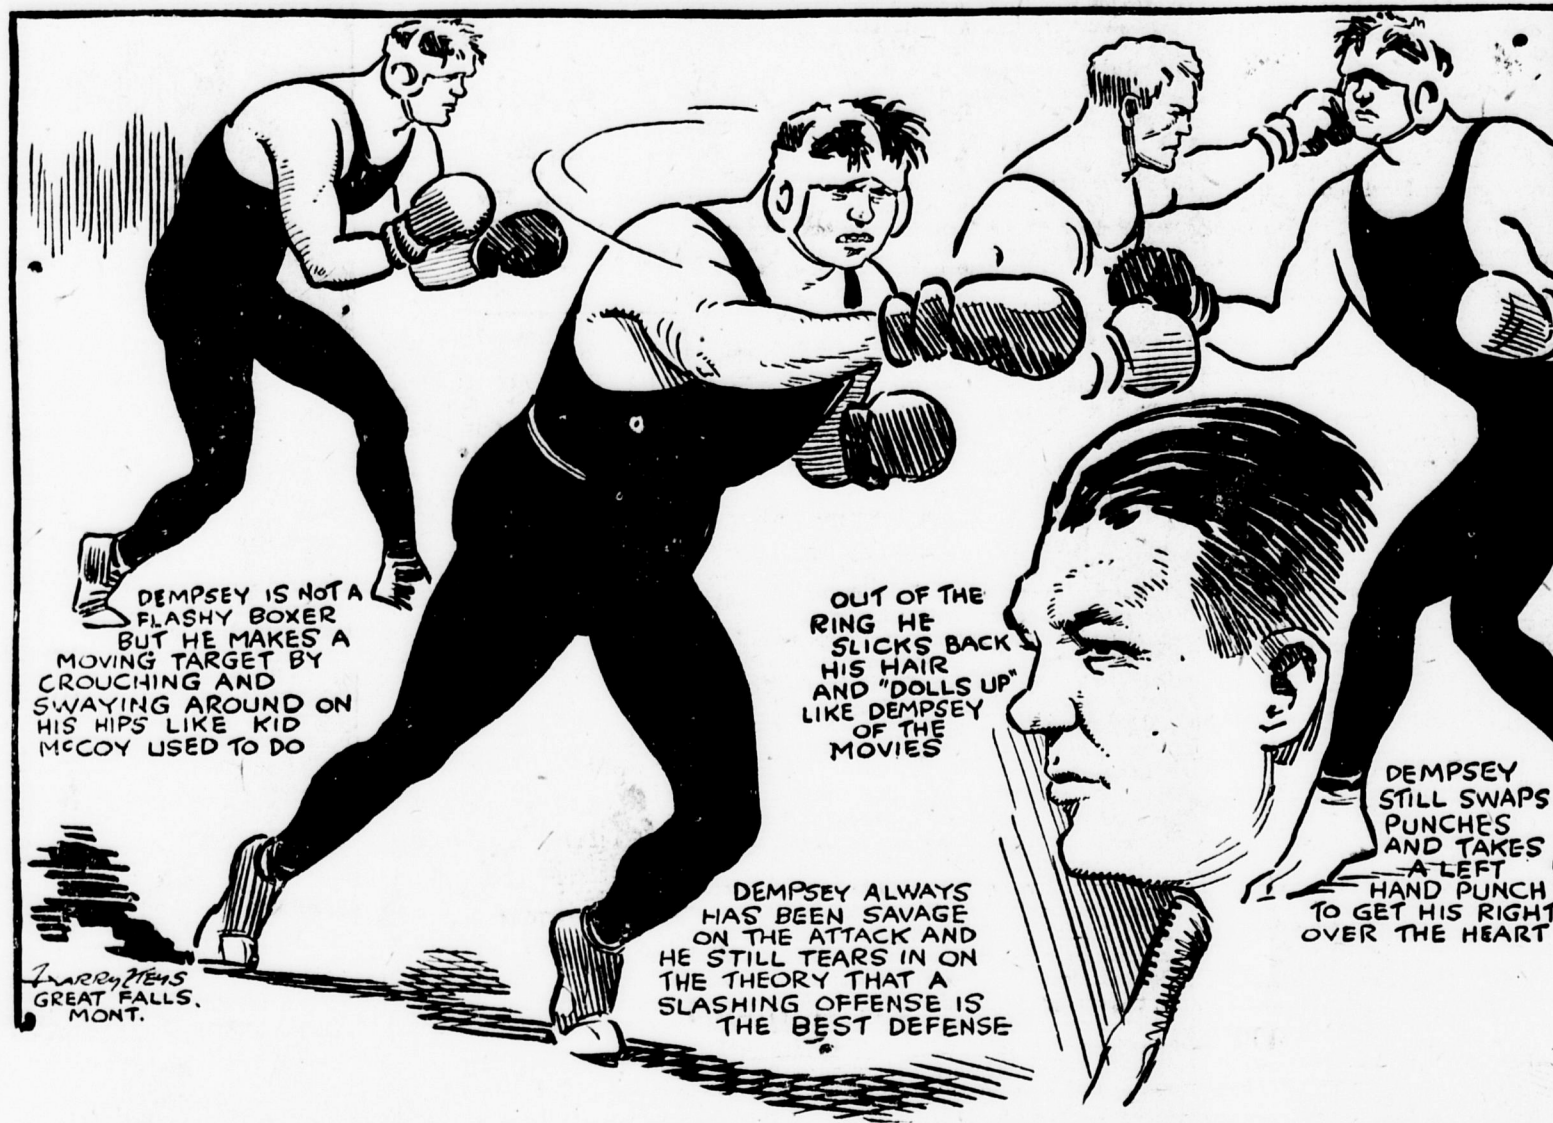

Victor Kaufmann helped win his own game against the St. Louis Cardinals and was one of the two Chicago batsmen to pound out a home run.

Outbit, the White Sox got the better of Cleveland after battling Covalcska from the box. Covalcska of the Sox gave way to Levert in the fourth and he managed to keep the Indians well in hand.

Ty Cobb's Tigers by a strong finish in the ninth broke up the score

"GOING STALE" ALL DEMPSEY MUST GUARD AGAINST

Jack's Tiger in Ring, Beau Brummell Outside

DEMPSEY IS NOT A FLASHY BOXER BUT HE MAKES A MOVING TARGET BY CROUCHING AND SWAYING AROUND ON HIS HIPS LIKE KID MCROY USED TO DO

OUT OF THE RING HE SLICKS BACK HIS HAIR AND 'DOLLS UP' LIKE DEMPSEY OF THE MOVIES

DEMPSEY ALWAYS HAS BEEN SAVAGE ON THE ATTACK AND HE STILL TEARS IN ON THE THEORY THAT A SLASHING OFFENSE IS THE BEST DEFENSE

BY WILSON ROSS, NEA Fight Expert.

Shelby, Mont., June 30.—There's just one thing that Jack Dempsey has to fight against in getting himself set for his July 4 battle with Tommy Gibbons. And that is going stale.

The champion is trained to the minute right now. It would be a fine thing for him if the scrap could be moved up a week or so. Hence the order is on from Manager Jack Kearns to slow up in the training.

This doesn't mean less speed in what working out the champion does. All the working out is to be at full speed in all of Dempsey's training stunts.

But the workouts are being cut almost in half. At times he does only four rounds in the ring with sparring partners. His bag-punching is cut in two and the same goes for his shadow-boxing. He frequently lays off altogether in the heavy work of punching the big stuffed dummy that swings overhead from a rope.

It would never do for the champion to be overtrained. That would be more fatal than being under-trained.

Some days his training stunts in the ring don't take up a half hour all told and never do they go a full hour any more.

Just how fine the champion is trained with the battle still several days off is revealed by his latest measurements.

Both in Fine Trim.

His waistline is just what he wants it—32 1/2 inches at the belt and that's just 2 1/2 inches less than the girth of the challenger, Tommy Gibbons. Wrist and ankle are tapered just right, the former being 8 1/4 to 9 inches for Gibbons and the ankle exactly 9 inches which is a half inch less than that of Gibbons.

But where the leg muscles count, Dempsey's smaller waist doesn't prevent him from having at much thigh as Gibbons at 22 1/2 inches each, while Dempsey's calf at 15 inches has one-half inch over Gibbons.

In biceps Dempsey has 15 inches, whereas Gibbons measures one inch less around the upper arm. Their forearms are the same at 12 1/2 inches each. And at the neck each measures 17 inches around.

Their chests normally measure 41 inches each, but Gibbons has 3 1/2 inches expansion to three inches exactly for the champion. Dempsey at six feet one is just a quarter-inch taller than Gibbons, whereas Gibbons, though unable to straighten his arms clear out at the elbows, has 74 inches reach to 73 for Dempsey who can extend his straight as an arrow to get the full advantage of measurement from finger-tip to finger-tip.

Jack 28, Tommy 29.

Now as to weight. The varying element for Dempsey's fine training has had him as low as 180 pounds. That is an inside camp secret from the champion's training quarters. And that's one of the big reasons why his training stunts have been cut down so much.

I believe he will weight several pounds more than that when he steps into the ring to battle Gibbons. Just how many pounds he will put on for the fight is problematical. He should weigh between 185 and 190.

Gibbons' ring weight is expected to be around 178. But in training here at Shelby he has been as high as two or three pounds over the 180 mark.

Dempsey's exactly 28, and they tell me Gibbons is 29. So this is no battle of youth to take away the crown from the brow of age and ring-experience. Gibbons has been in the ring some years longer than Dempsey. He has been a battler for the past 17 years, but it has only been within the last three that he has developed the kayo stuff that makes him a challenger for the big title.

a total of three rounds of milling. Snowball Draxton of Fargo and Kid Swanson, a railroad worker, will appear in the semi-windup event of six rounds.

Kid Grey of Valley City and Young South of Fargo will box six rounds. Both men give their weights as 150.

FRISCH MAKES 100TH HIT IN THIS SEASON

"Fordham Flash" Is Going Strong in the National League

Chicago, June 30.—Frankie Frisch, the "Fordham Flash" of the New York Giants smashed out his 100th hit, last Wednesday and is the first player in the major league to touch the century mark. He also shot himself into second position among the batters of the National League, who have participated in 40 or more games, according to averages released today and which include games of last Wednesday. He is hitting .382 and is the runnerup to Zack Wheat of Brooklyn, who increased his average thirteen points, and tops the list with .392. Charley Grimm of Pittsburgh underwent a batting slump and slipped to third place, four points in front of Bob O'Farrell of Chicago whose batting in the last few weeks has been sensational. O'Farrell's brilliant work includes seven homers and fourteen doubles.

Cy Williams of Philadelphia, leads in home runs with 20. Williams, since his return to the game, has had a batting slump which has carried him out of the leading group. His total base record, however, was brought up to 149, which is six more bases than credited to Jimmy Bottomley of St. Louis.

Other leading batters: Moken, Philadelphia, .359; Young, New York, .358; Bottomley, St. Louis, .357; Roush, Cincinnati, .356; Fournier, Brooklyn, .342; Earl Smith, Boston, .342; Southworth, Boston 341; Traynor, Pittsburgh, .335; Tierney, Philadelphia, .335.

Fred Haney, of Detroit one of the new comers is hobnobbing with the veterans at the top of the batters in the American League. Haney is fourth with an average of .356. A week ago he was sixth. His team mate Harry Heilmann, continues to head the list. Heilmann is batting .425. Charley Jamieson, of the Cleveland Indians, gained one point and moved into second place with an average of .370. Eddie Collins of the White Sox lost six points and dropped to third place with .368.

Collins improved his record for stolen bases and now has 26, a gain of two over the previous week. He also ran his string of sacrifice hits to 20.

"Babe" Ruth has been unable to improve his long distance hitting mark of 14 homers, but increased his record as a run getter, by two runs, making a total of 56 tallies to his credit. Ruth's total base record of 127 is being endangered by Heilmann who has a record of 136 total bases. Heilmann's string included 21 doubles, 3 triples and eight homers in his collection of 85 hits, while Ruth's mark is 71 hits and embraces besides his homers, 14 doubles and 5 triples.

Other leading batters: Burns, Boston, .349; Ruth, New York, .348; Rael, Washington, .340; Miller, Philadelphia, .337; Witt, New York, .336; J. Sewell, Cleveland, .335; S. Rice, Washington, .32; Cobb, Detroit, .330; J. Harris, Boston, .317.

MINOT TAKES SECOND GAME

New Rockford, N. D., June 30.—Minot won from Carrington-New Rockford in the second game of their series here yesterday by batting opportunity. The score was 6 to 4.

Minot . . . 291 .000 210-6 8 3
New Rock. . . 003 010 000-4 8 0

Batteries: Dennison and Wyner. Cantin and Seibold.

LAST GAME OF SERIES TODAY

The game between Jamestown and Bismarck here last evening was called off because of wet grounds. The two teams were to meet in Bismarck at 3 o'clock today, and tomorrow they play in Jamestown.

JACK SURE TREATS 'EM ROUGH

Dempsey is mauling his sparring partners unmercifully. Harry Drake, English heavyweight, is one of the "goats" at the champion's camp in Great Falls. Notice how Jack has just toppled him over.

MAKES RECORD IN ATHLETICS

Rolf K. Harmsen, son of R. N. Harmsen, banker of Hazen, has made remarkable progress at the Gallaudet college for the deaf, Washington, D. C. in the last year. He distinguished himself in athletics there, and while in Bismarck was able to understand many friends perfectly through lip reading. He met his father here at the Grand Pacific hotel and they returned to Hazen together.

HARDING SAYS LABOR, CAPITAL 'MUST BE FAIR

question out of our politics. Thus far it has not done so, though I venture to predict that neither of the great parties will see the time, within the lives of any who are now voting citizens, when it will declare openly for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. But despite all that, the question is kept in politics because of the almost fanatical urgency of the minority on both sides. Unless, through the recognition and acceptance of the situation in its true light, through the effective enforcement of the law by all the constituted authorities, and with the acquiescence of the clearly dominant public opinion of the country, the question is definitely removed from the domain of political action, it will continue a demoralizing element in our whole public life. It will be a permanent bar to the wise determination of many issues utterly unrelated to the liquor question. It will be the means of encouraging disrespect for many laws. It will bring disrepute upon our community, and be pointed to as justifying the charge that we are a nation of hypocrites. Therefore, the determination of this question is one of the most important of the day.

"It is easy to understand the conditions out of which much unrest has developed, but it is not easy to comprehend so much of complacency amid a developing peril. I want to give warning against that peril."

"Many citizens, not teetotalers in their habits, lawfully acquired stores of private stocks in anticipation of prohibition, pending the ratification of the amendment and the enactment of the regulatory law. Many others have had no scruple in seeking supplies from those who vend in defiance of the law. The latter practice is rather too costly to be indulged by the masses, so there are literally American millions who resent the lawful possessions of the few, the lawless practices of a few more, and rebel against the denial of the vast majority. Universal prohibition in the United States would occasion far less discontent than partial prohibition and partial indulgence.

"It is the partial indulgence which challenges the majesty of law, but the greater crime is the impairment of the moral fiber of the Republic. The resentful millions have the example of law defiance by those who can afford to buy, and are reckless enough to take the risk, and there is indicated a contempt for law which may some day find expression in far more serious form."

Cannot Feel Content

"I do not see how any citizen who cherishes the protection of the law in an organized society may feel himself secure when he himself is the example of contempt for law. Clearly there is call for awakened conscience and awakened realization of true self interest on the part of the few who will themselves make the most when reverence for law is forgotten and passion is expressed in destructive lawlessness. Ours must be a law-abiding republic, and reverence and obedience must spring from the influential and the leaders among men as well as obedience from the humblest citizen, else the temple will collapse."

"Whatever satisfaction there may be in indulgence, whatever objection there is to the so-called invasion of personal liberty neither counts when the supremacy of law and the stability of our institutions are menaced. With all their intentions to the majority sentiment of the United States has sought by law to remove strong drink as a curse upon the American citizen, but ours is a larger problem now to remove lawless drinking as a menace to the Republic."

"Apart from the tragedy of it all, I am glad Russia is making the experiment. If 20 centuries of the Christian era and its great story of human progress, and the countless centuries before the light of Christianity flamed have been lived and recorded, and the world has seen a righteous social order, then everything is wrong, Christianity a failure, and all of civilization a failure. I think Russia is going to reinvent our belief in established social order. Meanwhile we know ours is the best, the only one that has ever been tried, and I preach the gospel of holding fast to that which has proven good, ever trying in good conscience to make it better, and consider and treat as an enemy every man who chooses our land as a haven in which to shelter himself."

A large part of Mr. Harding's address was devoted to a discussion of the change in the relation of woman to the social and political organization. The President said he was one of those "old-fashioned" people who would be glad if the way could be found to maintain the traditional relations of father, mother, children and home, but that very plainly these relations are in process of a "great modification."

"The most we can do, to the utmost of our power," he said, "is to readapt our conditions of industry and of living so as to enable the mothers to make the utmost of their lessened opportunities for shaping the lives and minds of their children. We must hope, and we must make it possible, that the mothers will not assume when their babies of yesterday become the schoolboys and schoolgirls of today, that the responsibility of the mother is ended, and that the teacher, the school authorities, the college, the State, will henceforth assume it. The mothers must be placed in such position that despite their obligations outside the home they shall not have to surrender their domestic responsibility. Rather, means must be found to enable them through the varied instrumentalities which society affords, to equip themselves for the better discharge of their responsibility toward the children of the land."

School System

"The mother who tirelessly seeks rightly to train her own children, to instill into them that indefinable essence which we know as good breeding, will be performing this service not alone for her own children, but in only less measure for the children who come from homes less blessed with the finer things of life. Herein is the supreme advantage of the public-school system. I have never been able to find much satisfaction in the good fortune of families who, when they are able to do it, prefer to take their children out of the public schools and give them the doubtful advantage of more exclusive educational methods. I think we should cling to the democracy of the public schools.

"In the home must still be performed the duty of instilling into the child those fundamental concepts of religion and of faith which are essential to rightly shaping the character of citizens, and therefore of the Nation. Mankind never has stood more in need than it does now of the consolations and reassurances which derive from a firm religious faith. We are living in a time of many uncertainties, of weakness of faith, of the efficiency of institutions, of industrial systems, of economic hypotheses, of dictum and dogma in whatever sphere. Yet we all know that there are certain fundamental truths of life and duty and destiny which will stand eternal, through the evolution and the revolution of systems and societies founded by mankind. There must be no mistake whereby we shall confuse the things which are of eternity with those which are of time."

Can Reinstate Hail Insurance

State hail insurance withdrawn may be reinstated between July 1 and July 5, Martin Hagen, manager of the department, said today. Because the first falls on Sunday and the Fourth of July intervenes, the reinstatement must be made on either Monday or Tuesday, he said. Today was the last day for withdrawing lands already insured.

Hail loss claims, which were light during the first three weeks in June, have taken a tremendous jump and now number about 6,300, or about 2,000 more claims than the same day last year, the records of the department show. The bulk of the claims are from storms on June 24, which were felt in many parts of the state. Counties reporting the greatest number of hail loss claims are Bowman, Logan, Dickey, Bottineau and LaMoure.

Fair Weather For Next Week

CATERPILLARS BEGIN MARCH IN BOTTINEAU COUNTY; SWARM ON TREES

Bottineau, N. D., June 30.—Bottineau county residents are having visions of being overcome by swarms of caterpillars as a result of the identification of the hordes of destructive worms which have been operating on the trees in the Turtle Mountains as the forest tent caterpillar, believed to be the same insect that has been devastating trains and devastating great areas of trees in Oregon during the past few weeks.
Residents of the Turtle Mountain district a few days ago became alarmed as the damage caused to the trees by the myriads of caterpillars, and they called in County Agents C. B. Aamodt to find out if anything could be done to save the trees which had not already been defoliated. Mr. Aamodt sent specimens of the caterpillar to Dr. R. L. Webster, entomologist at the North Dakota Agricultural college, and he identified them as the forest tent caterpillar, and said that he believed them to be the same species as those which have been operating over vast tracts of forest country in Oregon, advancing in waves and sweeping clean every green bit of vegetation. Even trains have been delayed by the myriads of worms swarming over the track, according to news reports.
"Epidemics similar to that in Oregon are by no means a new thing," Dr. Webster declared in a letter to Mr. Aamodt. "As early as 1898 the forest tent caterpillar was present in alarming numbers in the Catskill and Adirondack mountains at that time Rev. H. U. Swinerton of Cherry Valley, N. Y., wrote: 'We would stop the progress of the age if it got across the way our worms were going.'"
Mr. Webster declares that he has found a few of the forest tent caterpillars around Fargo, but that the late May frosts destroyed most of the larva. The Turtle Mountain report is the only one showing widespread damage, according to Mr. Webster, who declares that there is little danger of the caterpillars becoming as widespread here as they are reported to be in Oregon.
"Leaves of trees are recently killed by the forest tent caterpillar," Dr. Webster reports, "and the caterpillar does not thrive on any other food. Since we have no large, continuous area of woods in North Dakota, with the possible exception of the Red River valley section, we do not have to fear an invasion similar to the one in Oregon."
"Natural enemies—birds, parasitic insects, bacterial diseases, and weather conditions usually held this pest in check. The caterpillars end their destruction by spraying with a coating of lead arsenate or paris green, but treatment for large areas is not feasible. The lead arsenate is applied at the rate of two pounds of powder to 50 gallons of water, and paris green at the rate of one pound to 50 gallons of water. Shade trees may be banded around the trunks with some adhesive material such as tanglefoot."
"Depredations in this locality usually continue until late in June, when the larva pupate and moths appear late in July. The full grown caterpillar is about two inches long, and with a row of cream-colored diamond-shaped spots down the back."

CATERPILLARS BEGIN MARCH IN BOTTINEAU COUNTY; SWARM ON TREES

Bottineau, N. D., June 30.—Bottineau county residents are having visions of being overcome by swarms of caterpillars as a result of the identification of the hordes of destructive worms which have been operating on the trees in the Turtle Mountains as the forest tent caterpillar, believed to be the same insect that has been delaying trains and devastating great areas of trees in Oregon during the past few weeks.

Residents of the Turtle Mountain district a short time ago became alarmed as the damage caused to the trees by the myriads of caterpillars, and they called in County Agents C. B. Aamodt to find out if anything could be done to save the trees which had not already been defoliated. Mr. Aamodt sent specimens of the caterpillar to Dr. R. L. Webster, entomologist at the North Dakota Agricultural college, and he identified them as the forest tent caterpillar, and said that he believed them to be the same species as those which have been operating over vast tracts of forest country in Oregon, advancing in waves and sweeping clean every green bit of vegetation. Even trains have been delayed by the myriads of worms swarming over the track, according to news reports.

"Epidemics similar to that in Oregon are by no means a new thing," Dr. Webster declared in a letter to Mr. Aamodt. "As early as 1898 the forest tent caterpillar was present in alarming numbers in the Catskill and Adirondack mountains, and at that time Rev. H. U. Swinnerton of Cherry Valley, N. Y., wrote: 'We would stop the progress of the age if it got across the way our worms were going.'"

Mr. Webster declares that he has found a few of the forest tent caterpillars around Fargo, but that the late May freezes destroyed most of the larva. The Turtle Mountain report is the only one showing widespread damage, according to Mr. Webster, who declares that there is little danger of the caterpillars becoming as widespread here as they are reported to be in Oregon.

"Leaves of trees are keenly relished by the forest tent caterpillar," Dr. Webster reports, "and the caterpillar does not thrive on any other food. Since we have no large, continuous areas of woods in North Dakota, with the possible exception of the Red River valley section, we do not have to fear an invasion similar to the one in Oregon."

"Natural enemies—birds, parasitic insects, bacterial diseases, and weather conditions usually held this pest in check. The caterpillars can be destroyed by spraying with a solution of lead arsenate or paris green, but treatment for large areas is not feasible. The lead arsenate is applied at the rate of two pounds of powder to 50 gallons of water, and paris green at the rate of one pound to 50 gallons of water. Shade trees may be banded around the trunks with some adhesive material such as tanglefoot."

"Damage to this locality usually continues until late in June, when the larva pupate and moths appear late in July. The full grown caterpillar is about two inches long, hairy, and with a row of cream-colored diamond-shaped spots down the back."

Avoid These Symptoms

"I was weak and nervous, had headaches all the time, and my back hurt so bad I could hardly stoop," writes Frank Richardson, Perry, Georgia. "Tried Foley Kidney Pills and got relief." Backache, rheumatic pains, tired feeling, dull headache, too frequent urination, discolored or strong odor are symptoms of kidney and bladder disorders and demand prompt treatment. Foley Kidney pills give quick relief. Refuse substitutes. Insist upon Foley's.

MONTANA MEN GIVE CASH FOR STATE'S HONOR

Twenty Wealthy Residents of the State Pledge $100,000 Final Payment

PAY MONEY MONDAY

Dempsey Will Get His First Glimpse of Shelby Just Before Fight

Great Falls, Mont., June 30.—Safe over its most dangerous financial crisis the Jack Dempsey-Tom Gibbons heavyweight fight, is assured a decision in Shelby, July 4, as the result of one of the most remarkable financial achievements in the history of glove fighting. When all contributions pointed to a complete collapse of the fight yesterday, George Stanton, the Great Falls banker, conceived the idea of applying to 20 wealthy business men in the state to save what he terms the honor of Montana by having them advance $50,000 each to take up the final $1,000,000 installment of Dempsey's $200,000 guarantee.

Within five hours the $100,000 was pledged. Although Mr. Stanton declined to divulge the names of the individuals contributing the money it was said that $30,000 was raised in Great Falls, $20,000 in Billings, $25,000 in Butte and the balance in Shelby and Lewiston. The money will be here in the bank before night, Stanton said, and will be turned over to Jack Kearns, manager of the heavy weight champion on Monday in accordance with the terms of the contract.

The 30 men subscribing to the $100,000 installment will receive in return 33 1/3 interest in the moving pictures of the fight and the promise that the money will be refunded on the first cash received on the sale of tickets. Any loss under the terms of the agreement will be shouldered by the contributors on a pro-rata basis.

Dempsey today entered his last two days of training. Manager Kearns plans to have him box four light rounds this afternoon. Tomorrow he will conclude his last work with the gloves Monday and Tuesday will find the champion doing a little light training merely to keep his mind occupied.

He will leave for Shelby Wednesday, getting his first glimpse of the town a few hours before entering the ring.

SHELBY CELEBRATES
Shelby, Mont., June 30.—Dated as it has been since Jack Dempsey first against Tom Gibbons, Shelby is celebrating today. A lead was lifted from Shelby's shoulders last night when Mayor Jim Johnson, treasurer of the fight, announced over the telephone: "You can tell the whole world there will be a fight on Wednesday, July 4, at 8 o'clock in the Shelby arena."

Notice of the mayor's announcement spread quickly along the crowded main streets. Swash-buckling cowboys in clapping chaps and clanking spurs affixed easterners, grim workers from the oil fields, merchants, concessionaries and the helter-skelter population of this town of clubhouse houses and tents received it with cheers.

Impromptu celebrations were arranged and dance halls and theaters were filled with smiling, cheerful Shelyites.

NINTH INNING RALLY BEATS THE ATHLETICS

Yankees Take Second Game of Big Series from Connie Mack's Team

Chicago, June 30.—After a ninth inning rally had given them three runs to tie the score Connie Mack's Athletics dropped the second game of their series with the Yankees when Ernie Johnson, a pinch-hitter, cracked out a single with the bases full for the winning score.

While the Giants and Boston were idle because of rain Cincinnati and Pittsburgh divided a double-header in their contest for second place in the National League. Plaque added another victory to his list when he blanked the Pirates in the opener. Bagby in the second game was superior to Benton and Pittsburgh won.

Brooklyn staged a batting orgy against the humble Phillies and trounced them 14 to 5. The Robins annexed 25 hits, including three home runs. The Phillies also hit hard, getting 14 blows, three for 14 bases.

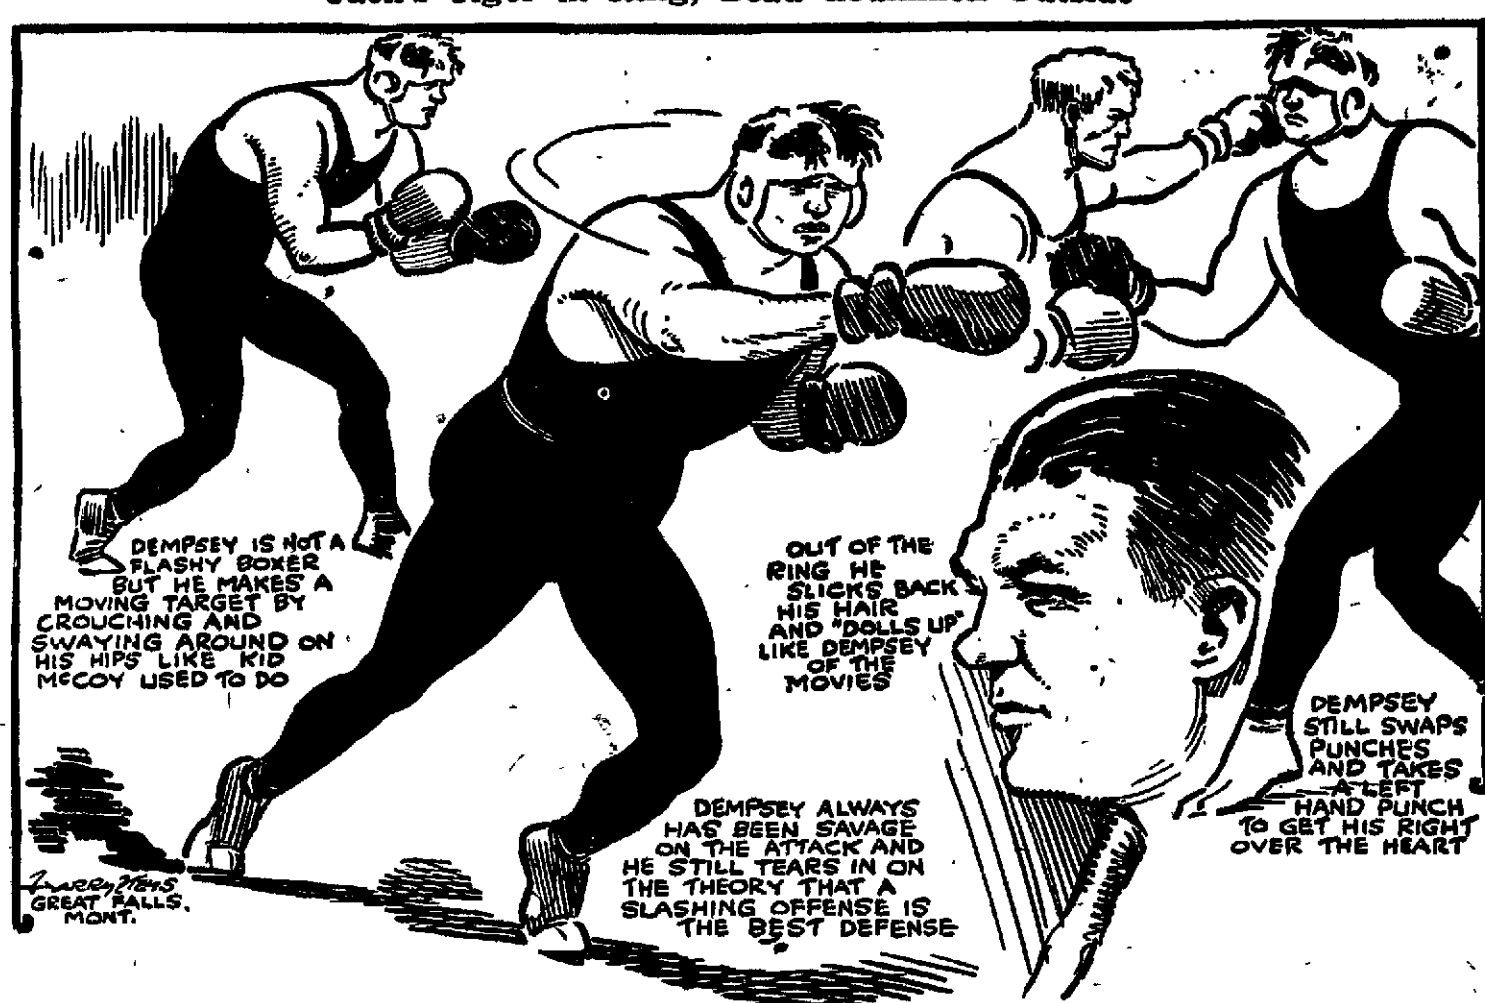

Victor Kaufmann helped win his own game against St. Louis Cardinals and was one of the two Chicago batsmen to pound out a home run.

Outbit, the White Sox got the better of Cleveland after battling Covaleskie from the box. Cavigles of the Sox gave way to Leverett in the fourth and he managed to keep the Indians well in hand.

Ty Cobb's Tigers by a strong finish in the sixth broke up the score

MAKES RECORD IN ATHLETICS

Rolf K. Harmsen, son of R. N. Harmsen, banker of Hazen, has made a remarkable record in the Gallaudet college for the deaf, Washington, D. C. in the last year. He distinguished himself in athletics there, and while in Bismarck was able to understand many friends perfectly through lip reading. He met his father here at the Grand Pacific hotel and they returned to Hazen together.

A large part of Mr. Harding's address was devoted to a discussion of the change in the relation of woman to the social and political organization. The President said he was one of those "old-fashioned" people who would be glad if the way could be found to maintain the traditional relations of father, mother, children and home, but that very plainly these relations are in process of a "great modification."

"The most we can do, to the utmost possible extent," he said, "is to readapt our conditions of industry and of living so as to enable the mother to make the most of their lessened opportunity for shaping the lives and minds of their children. We must hope, and we must make it possible that mothers will not assume, when their babies of yesterday become the schoolboys and schoolgirls of today, that the responsibility of the mother is ended, and that the teacher, the school authorities, the college, the State, will henceforth assume it. The mothers must be placed in such position that despite their obligations outside the home they shall not have to surrender their domestic duties to the State."

There will be due on such Mortgage at the date of sale the sum of Two Thousand Two Hundred and 74-100 ($2,250.74) Dollars.

HARDING SAYS LABOR, CAPITAL 'MUST BE FAIR'

tional amendment would take the question out of our politics. Thus far it has not done so, though I venture to predict that neither of the great parties will see the time, within the lives of any who are now voting citizens, when it will declare openly for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. But despite all that, the question is kept in politics because of the almost fanatical urgency of the minority on both sides. Unless, through the recognition and acceptance of the situation in its true light, through the effective enforcement of the law by all the constituted authorities, and with the acquiescence of the clearly dominant public opinion of the country, the question is definitely removed from the domain of political action, it will continue a demoralizing element in our whole public life. It will be a permanent bar to the wise determination of many issues utterly unrelated to the liquor question. It will be the means of encouraging disrespect for many laws. It will bring disrepute upon our community, and be pointed to as justifying the charge that we are a nation of hypocrites. There can be no issue in this and no movement to that of enforcement of the law.

"It is easy to understand the conditions out of which much unrest has developed, but it is not easy to comprehend so much of complacency amid a developing peril. I want to give warning against that peril. "Many citizens, not legislators in their habits, lawfully acquired stores of private stocks in anticipation of prohibition, pending the ratification of the amendment and the enactment of the regulatory law. Many others have had no scruple in seeking supplies from those who vend in defiance of the law. The latter practice is rather too costly to be indulged by the masses, so there are literally American millions who represent the lawful possessions of a few, the lawless practices of a few more, and rebel against the denial to the vast majority of the universal prohibition. The United States would occasion far less discontent than partial prohibition and partial indulgence.

"It is the partial indulgence which challenges the majesty of law, but the greater crime is the impairment of the moral fiber of the Republic. The successful millions have the example of the failure of the few. They can afford to buy, and are reckless enough to take the risk, and there is indicated a contempt for law which may some day find expression in far more serious form.

Cannot Feel Contempt

"I do not see how any citizen who cherishes the protection of law in organized society may feel himself secure when he himself is the ex-ample of contempt for the law. There is a call for awakened conscience and awakened realization of true self interest on the part of the few who will themselves suffer most when reverence for law is forgotten and passion is expressed in destructive lawlessness. Ours must be a law-abiding republic, and reverence and obedience must spring from the influential and the leaders among men as well as obedience from the humbler citizen, else the temple will collapse.

"Whatever satisfaction there may be in indulgence, whatever objection there is to the so-called inaction of personal liberty by the few, when the supremacy of law and the stability of our institutions are menaced. With all good intention the majority sentiment of the United States has sought by law to remove strong drink as a curse upon the American citizen, but ours is a large or perhaps new to remember drinking as a menace to the Republic itself."

"Apart from the tragedy of it all, I am glad Russia is making the experiment. If 20 centuries of the Christian era and its great story of human progress, and the countless centuries before the light of Christianity flamed have been lived and recorded upon mistaken theories of a righteous social order, then every thing is wrong, Christianity a failure, and all of civilization a failure. I think Russia is going to rivet anew our belief in established social order. Meanwhile we know ours is the best of all possible worlds, and I proceed the gospel of holding fast to that which has proven good, ever trying in good conscience to make it better, and consider and treat as an enemy every man who chooses our land as a haven in which to shelter the very institutions which shelter him.

"The mother who tirelessly seeks rightly to train her own children, to instill into them that indefinable essence which we know as good breeding, will be performing this service not alone for her own children, but in only less measure for the children who come from homes blessed with the finer things of life. Herein is the supreme advantage of the public-school system. I have never been able to find much satisfaction in the good fortune of families who, when they are able to do it, prefer to take their children out of the public schools and give them the doubtful advantage of more exclusive educational methods. I think we should cling to the democracy of the public schools.

"In the home must still be performed the duty of instilling into the child those fundamental concepts of religion and faith which are essential to rightly shaping the character of citizens, and therefore of the Nation. Mankind never has stood more in need than it does now of the consolations and reassurances which derive from a firm religious faith. We are living in a time of many uncertainties, of weakened faith in the efficiency of institutions, of industrial systems, of economic hypotheses, of dictum and dogma in whatever sphere. Yet we all know that there are certain fundamental truths of life and duty and destiny which will stand eternal, through the evolution and the revolution of systems and societies founded by mankind. There must be no mistake whereby we shall confuse the things which are of eternity with those which are of time."

Can Reinstatement Hail Insurance

State hail insurance withdrawn may be reinstated between July 1 and July 5, Martin Hagen, manager of the department, said today. Because the first falls on Sunday and the Fourth of July intervenes, the reinstatement must be made on either Monday or Tuesday, he said. Today was the last day for withdrawing lands already insured.

Hail loss claims, which were light during the first three weeks in June, have taken a tremendous jump and now number about 6,300, or about 2,000 more claims than the same days last year. The bulk of the claims are from storms on June 24, which were felt in many parts of the state. Counties reporting the greatest number of hail loss claims are Bowman, Logan, Dickey, Bottineau and La Moure.

PREPARE TO FORECLOSE ON STATE LOANS

Notorious McMahon $25,000
Loan Involved in Bank's
Actions

Preparations are being made by the Bank of North Dakota through its new collection department established by virtue of acts of the last general assembly to foreclose on 15 to 20 tracts of land on which farm loans were obtained while the bank was in the hands of the Nonpartisan administration.

The first three cases are about ready for filing, and will be on loans to J. D. McMahon, Ray McKaig and William Hendren of Belfield.

McMahon obtained a $25,000 loan from the Bank of North Dakota, and the administration was assailed vigorously at the time because McMahon was a resident of St. Paul and a relative of former Congressman John E. Beyer. The land is located in Billings county and it was charged that some of it was useless.

McMahon has never made any payments to the bank. He made a settlement for the first two installments by giving a second mortgage on some land in Sargent county, according to G. Olgerson of the collection department of the bank.

Ray McKaig, a former league organizer and now active in the Nonpartisan League in Boise, Idaho, obtained $7,500 on some land in Morton county. It is reported to the bank that some of it, along the Missouri river, is being washed away. He never made any payment.

U. S. IS FIRM MELLON SAYS

No Change in Ship Liquor
Attitude, He Says

London, June 30.—Andrew W. Mellon, American secretary of the treasury, who arrived in England last evening on the Majestic told newspaper men here that the United States government had no intention of relaxing its attitude regarding prohibition of liquor on board incoming liners. He saw no solution until Congress met, he added.

Secretary Mellon reiterated his statement that the United States government had never contemplated seizing foreign liquor carrying ships or detaining the captains.

He expects to return to Washington by September 1 and will confine his travels in Europe to England, France and Belgium, and not visit Germany or Italy.
